Happy Kansas.
Big Editors' Big Thoughts.
Worked to Death.
Goodbye, Mistletoe.

NEWTON, Kan., Dec. 29.

GOING through Kansas on the writer's third trip across the continent this month, the weather is fine, white-faced cattle in the standing cornstalks seem happy and fat, you see forty automobiles on county roads where you used to see one buggy or rockaway. Kansas pigs, many of them "Jersey Reds," live in wide fields, instead of muddy stys and are clean. Pigs, like human beings, are clean in the right environment.

NEWSPAPERS of different passing cities, like so many lighthouses, give information. The Kansas City Journal, William Allen White's Emporia Gazette, Senator Capper's Topeka Daily Capital and the Murdock Brothers' Wichita Eagle, tell you all there is to know, and more.

GREAT Kansas editors seem to have about the same interests. First comes the fact that Young Hickman, kidnaper and murderer, wonders whether he will be hanged or jailed for life. He won't wonder very long. And the other fact that he likes perfumes which clings to his overcoat after thousands of miles in an open car.

NEXT in importance comes the fact that J. Pierpont Morgan consents to head the U. S. Steel Corporation. And after that information that Mexico on second thought won't confiscate oil lands that were owned by Americans before Mexico's latest constitution was invented.

IT WAS suggested in this column lately that farmers might some day sell cornstalks to make artificial silk and find the stalks worth more than the corn.

William Allen White on his front page says: "An Emporian," which means an inhabitant of Emporia, is building a factory to make from cornstalks, cellulose to be manufactured into artificial silk, paper, films, celluloid, explosives, varnishes and other products.

These Kansas cattle with white faces will miss the wide fields of cornstalks now left standing, but farmers will be happier.

VICTOR MURDOCK, in large type on front page of his paper says, "Rome was shaken by a quake four minutes yesterday, but its agitation was nothing compared to that among the relatives of Sylvester Poli, at Turin, Italy, when they heard yesterday that Uncle Sylvester was coming home from America with thirty million dollars."

That sum, amounting to almost 600,000,000 lire will be very welcome in Italy. Mussolini will know how to make it useful and how to tax it.

SENATOR CAPPER'S Daily Capital says mistletoe sales have fallen off. There is little demand for it. "Kissing is too common nowadays to be looked forward to as an unusual Christmas treat."

A modest lady climbing to the top of the London bus held her skirts tightly about her ankles, the weary bus conductor said, "Legs is no treat to me, ma'am."

Legs are certainly no treat in this country, and now the young think the mistletoe a joke. Thus romance goes into the discard.

AN OLD man having worked faithfully for the postoffice for forty years got through the extra hard work of Christmas and was found dead in bed. Uncle Sam had the satisfaction, if it is any satisfaction, of knowing that he got out of that servant "all there was in him." A decent farmer would be ashamed to work a horse as that servant of the richest country in the world was worked.

Postoffice employes should have better pay while they work, and a chance to enjoy part of life in freedom on decent pensions.

JOHN PURCELL, able railroad man, says the Diesel engine using distillate much cheaper than gasoline, "is the coming thing." It will take the place of steam engines in railroad motive power.

Mr. Purcell thinks railroads will use Diesel engines generating power to run electric motors on new locomotives. That is cheerful news for oil men, when oil takes the place of coal on railroads the oil surplus won't last long.

MR. BABE RUTH amazes "sportdom" by saying, "nearing the advanced age of 34," that he believes in all-year-round training and expects to be "just as good at 40" as he is now.

For such work as Babe Ruth does, hard hitting and running, 40 should be the best age, and 50 about as good. It isn't their work but their play between times that makes men old.

'Fox' Admits 2d Murder

By ARTHUR L. MAREK,
International News Service Staff Correspondent.

LOS ANGELES, Cal., Dec. 29.—William Edward Hickman, kidnaper and killer, added another murder to his list of confessed crimes when he confessed early today that he shot to death Ivy Thomas, Los Angeles druggist, in a holdup here on Christmas Eve of 1926.

Hickman, in a startling confession to Under-Sheriff Eugene Biscailuz and Chief Jailer Frank Dewar, implicated Welby Hunt as his accomplice in the fatal robbery.

ARREST ACCOMPLICE

Hunt was arrested early today at Alhambra and confessed to his participation in the holdup.

Hickman's new admission came like a bolt from a clear sky after the confessed kidnaper-killer of little Marian Parker calmly announced he wanted to "make a clean breast" of his crimes.

Included in his amazing confession is a string of some 50 holdups and robberies.

Early today Hickman was writing out the details of his new confession, delivered at first in person to Under-Sheriff Biscailuz and Jailer Dewar.

Thomas, who owned a drug store at the corner of Huntington boulevard and Rose Hill drive, was shot to death when two youthful bandits held him up in his place of business on the night of December 24, 1926.

The shooting began when a policeman, stationed in the store, opened fire. Thomas was laid low when the TOLEDO, O., Dec. 29.—Important developments in the low-priced field were predicted today by John N. Willys, president of Willys-Overland, Inc., in a statement in which he announced that the Whippet, the original European-type light car introduced 19 months ago, would be shown at all dealers on January 6 with improved bodies, new and added equipment, and at prices which would place it in direct competition with the lowest-priced cars on the American market.

Mr. Willys said that production economies of a kind not to be ex-

GIRL FINDS PARENTS SLAIN

Insane with rage because he could not obtain employment, Levi D. Goughenour, 53, shot and killed his wife, Nancy, 52, at their home, 153 Flowers avenue, Hazelwood, this morning, then turned the weapon upon himself and committed suicide. A daughter, Anna, 13, was still in bed when her mother and father began quarreling, she told police, and when she heard the shots she ran downstairs to find her mother dying in the front room and her father dead on the kitchen floor.

A neighbor who heard the shots telephoned police. Goughenour fired five shots into his wife's body, saving the sixth for himself. Signs of a bitter struggle were evident, broken dishes and overturned furniture testifying to the woman's battle for life

ANNA GOUGHENOUR

Anna Goughenour, 13, of 153 Flowers avenue, was orphaned this morning when her father, Levi, shot and killed his wife, Anna, and then killed himself. The girl was in bed when she heard the shooting on the floor below. Rushing downstairs, she found her mother unconscious and her father dead. The mother died a short time later.

Hunt Suitor And Teacher

BROWNSVILLE, Pa., Dec. 29.—The disappearance of pretty Mary Fordyce, 19-year-old Sunday school teacher, who has been missing from her aunt's home since Tuesday, was a step nearer solution today when a warrant was issued for the arrest of Evan Pocci, 35, on a charge of kidnaping.

Pocci and Mary were in Washington, Pa., last night, and intended to go to Maryland to be married, State Trooper Carl Maurer said his investigation showed.

BLAMED BOOTLEGGERS

Mrs. Bruce McVay, aunt and guardian of the girl, blamed her disappearance on bootleggers and described it as a kidnaping to strike back at herself. Mrs. McVay, as secretary of the Women's Christian Temperance Union, has crusaded against bootleggers in this territory.

Mary, one of four children whose parents are dead, left the McVay home Tuesday morning presumably for the Monongahela Railways Company office, where she was employed as a typist. Pocci vanished at about the same time, Trooper Maurer said.

Maurer said Pocci had left his job as taxi driver one year ago. He was convicted and fined on a charge of violating the prohibition law recently, according to Maurer.

Pocci and the girl had kept company for several months, Maurer said he had learned.

Big Hotel Deal Here Rumored

All properties of the Pittsburgh Hotels Company, including the William Penn Hotel, the William Penn Hotel addition now under construction, the Fort Pitt Hotel and the Fort Pitt Laundry building, are involved in a $17,000,000 deal, according to a rumor widely circulated in Pittsburgh's financial district today.

The T. Coleman Dupont interests, operators of the McAlpin chain of New York hotels, are named in connection with the deal.

Grant McCargo, president of the Pittsburgh Hotels Company, emphatically denied the rumor when it was brought to his attention. "Reports concerning the sale of the hotels are being heard all the time, but there is absolutely nothing to the story," Mr. McCargo declared.

Charles A. Blanchard, a director of the hotels company, also denied the report.

Officers of the Pittsburgh Hotels Company, which built and has operated the Fort Pitt and William Penn hotels, are McCargo, president; William H. Furey, secretary-treasurer, and C. C. Butler, manager.

The William Penn Hotel, Pittsburgh's leading hostelry, is a 19-story brick structure constructed in the Italian Renaissance style. It contains 1,000 rooms and the addition

MEXICO, NEAR FINANCIAL ROCKS, SEEKS U. S. AID

By International News Service.

NEW YORK, Dec. 29.—Facing financial collapse as the result of its inability to meet its obligations, the Mexican government today was straining every effort to find funds with which to pay its way.

The traditional unwillingness of Mexico to shoulder the burden of paying its obligations is seen with the appearance in New York of Fernando de La Fuente, chief of the Department of Credit, to seek a modification of the so-called Pani-Lamont agreement covering external debt service.

The negotiations are based upon the grant of authority to President Calles that the Mexican executive may seek a way out of complying with the promises made that his government would begin full payments under the agreement on January 1, 1928.

The position of the Mexican regime is that it cannot afford to spend for debt service 42 per cent of its total budget of $140,000,000.

In this connection it is noted here that the United States spends for debt service 51 per cent of its budget, and that European nations are spending even larger proportional amounts to meet their obligations.

Friends of Mexico hope that the Calles government's cordial reception

'DON'T CARE TO RUN'—MELLON

By International News Service.

WASHINGTON, Dec. 29.—Secretary of the Treasury Mellon reiterated today that he would not be a candidate for the presidency in 1928.

Commenting upon dispatches from Pittsburgh which appeared in morning papers here today suggesting that the Mellon organization in Pennsylvania was mapping out detailed plans to further the candidacy of the cabinet member in the Kansas City convention next June, Mellon said:

"It is news to me. It is not true. I am not now and do not care to be a candidate."

Secretary Mellon also reiterated that he has not yet selected the candidate who will have his support in the convention.

"I am not at present taking any position," Mellon said in commenting upon other candidates.

After reading the Pittsburgh dispatches in today's papers the Treasury secretary communicated by long distance telephone with his nephew, W. L. Mellon, of Pittsburgh, chairman of the Republican State Committee. From his conversation, Mel-

SLUGGER FELLS GIRL

Another girl fell victim to the Negro slugger, who has been spreading terror on the North Side. Early this morning Florence Kerr, 15, of 515 West Jefferson street, was felled by a milk bottle wielded by the Negro as she was walking in Monterey street.

The girl, who was removed to her home where she was attended for cuts on the head, told police that the Negro, without warning, leaped from behind a pole and struck her with a milk bottle. The blow stunned her, and her assailant, after taking her purse, which contained some small change, fled.

The attack occurred shortly after midnight, while Miss Kerr was returning to her home.

North Side police have not been able to find a clue to the identity of the Negro, who has robbed, and in some cases brutally assaulted, nearly a dozen women in the North Side district.

SIX ARRESTED

A roundup of Negroes, ordered as the result of numerous holdups and attacks on women on the North Side, resulted in one of the suspects being identified as the assailant of Mrs. Frank Ott, of 825 Maginn street, who was robbed of $40 in Brighton road Tuesday night.

Mrs. Ott, threatened with a knife after being beaten by the highwayman, pointed to Ruben Ballard, 30, of 9 Hamilton place, in police court today and declared he was the man who had attacked her. When Ballard denied the accusation, Mrs. Ott said she was doubly sure, as she remembered the voice.

Ballard was arrested in a pool room in Charles street with five other suspects by Patrolman James Shaw and Acting Lieutenant William Love. Of the seven Negroes arrested, two were sent to the workhouse for 30 days by Magistrate E. M. Hough and five were held for further investigation.

Eight Saved From Gas Fumes

Eight persons including a man and wife and three of their children were saved from death early this morning when police rescued them after they had been overcome by fumes from burning gas stoves in their home, 150 Winslow street.

Three other small children who were in the house at the time were roused from sleep and taken to the street. Firemen from No. 8 Engine company, police and neighbors revived the victims.

The house is occupied by Constanza Secola, 35, his wife Rose, 33; their six children, Annett, Anthony, Margaret, Orlando, Reynold and Marie Secola and Mary, Joseph and John Laurine, residing on the first floor. Neighbors were aroused by one of the children crying in its sleep and the called Sergeant Edward James at the Frankstown Avenue station.

ceeded by any other manufacturer had been worked out by Willys-Overland. A new body building plant and a new forge shop have effected marked savings.

Production of the new Whippet is already under way and immediate deliveries are promised early in January.

While the new prices will not be advertised until January 6, Mr. Willys stated that they would be reduced by a striking margin. This will be the first time in the history of the industry that there has been direct competition in the lowest price range, he said.

Production capacity will now permit a daily output of 1,000, with facilities under way to increase is figure.

This car has established numerous performance records, including a national economy run of 3,559 miles from Los Angeles to New York, in which a fuel average of 43.28 miles to the gallon was maintained. An owner economy test with a national average of 28.7 miles to the gallon and an official speed test in which 71.6 miles an hour was maintained for 50 miles.

The Whippet was the first light car in this country to use four-wheel brakes.

Slain Woman's Parrot Cries 'Mom, Mom'

By ALMA SIOUX SCARBERRY

Old, and a bother to his family because he could not find work! That is given as the reason for the sudden fit of madness that swept over Levi D. Goughenour at 8:30 this morning and caused him to shoot his wife, Nancy, 52, and then kill himself in their home at 153 Flowers avenue, Hazelwood.

The home was a pitiful sight with its Christmas tree broken and partly dismantled in the death struggle and broken dishes scattered here and there. There is no doubt that a terrific struggle was made by the mother of seven children before she met death.

Anna, 13, was the only one in the house when the tragedy occurred. She declares she was asleep and did not know anything was happening until the shots began to ring out. It was Thelma, 30, another daughter, employed by a casket company, who, with broken sobs, told the story:

"I was at work. Everything was fine when I left. But yesterday poor dad looked and looked for work and couldn't find a thing. He is a machinist and has been without a job for almost two years. Only last night he said he was a bother and that he had no right to live.

"I kissed him and told him he was foolish, but it didn't seem to cheer him up much. It made him so unhappy because he couldn't buy Christmas presents for the family this year. He loved mother very much and I know it wasn't jealousy or that he didn't suspect the poor soul of being untrue to him. No doubt he suddenly went insane and didn't know what he was doing."

A voice screaming "Mama, Mom, Mom," pierced the stillness of the silent house as police moved back and forth quietly discharging their duty. It was Mrs. Goughenour's parrot, with a voice so nearly human that for a time it was thought to be a member of the family crying out in grief.

HOTEL DEAL RUMORED

which is being constructed at the present time, designed as a 24-story structure, will also contain 1,000 rooms.

The entire block bounded by Oliver avenue, William Penn way, Sixth avenue and Grant street, comprising 216x200 feet, is occupied by the William Penn Hotel and the addition under construction. The hotel was opened in March, 1916. It was the general report that it cost more than $5,000,000 to build and $1,200,000 to furnish.

Steel work is being placed on the addition at the rear. The four top stories of the addition will be in a set-back. Architecture will be similar to the old building, the ornamentation being done in limestone and terra cotta. The estimated cost of the construction work to be done on the new building alone is $4,000,000.

Entrances to the addition will be from Grant street, Sixth avenue and Oliver avenue. Plans call for two floors of shops.

The Fort Pitt Hotel is a 10-story building, regarded as one of Pittsburgh's best hotels. It was constructed in an earlier period, but found considerable favor with the traveling public. The lot occupied by the Fort Pitt is 116x260 feet at the east corner of Penn avenue and Tenth street.

The laundry of the Fort Pitt is a valuable six-story building in Liberty avenue beyond Tenth street, separated by an alley from the hotel property. It occupies 40x110 feet.

AX LOOMS FOR KENNA AND FUGASSI

Rumors that County Commissioners Joseph G. Armstrong and E. V. Babcock are planning many changes in the personnel of offices under their jurisdiction kept the Courthouse in a turmoil today.

Heading the list of reports is one to the effect that, shortly after the organization of the new board of county commissioners Tuesday, E. M. Kenna, former chairman of the Second Ward and head of the county road bureau, is to be deposed.

On the sliding scale with Kenna, according to reports today, is his chief lieutenant, John A. Fugassi. Both men opposed the Republican organization with which both Armstrong and Babcock are affiliated, at the primary election in September as well as at the Vare-Pepper-Pinchot primary last year when they supported Vare and Beidlemen against the Mellon forces here.

DEPUTY SHERIFF FIRED

The Kenna forces are said to be expecting trouble when the new county officials take office and are preparing to retaliate wherever possible. One of their first moves came yesterday when Sheriff Robert Braun "fired" Deputy Sheriff William Stewart, who aligned himself with the faction headed by P. J. O'Malley in the hectic Second Ward battle at the primary when the Kenna-Anderson forces were defeated by the O'Malley-McManus troops.

The expected trouble over county jobs, together with the pending battle for the presidency of council, promises to knock the "harmony" that on the surface, has existed since W. L. Mellon took an active hand in politics here, into a cocked hat. Both flare-ups are certain to have an effect in the April senatorial primary.

The councilmanic situation is seething under cover, with Daniel Winters seeking to hold his post and James F. Malone trying to wrest it from him. The Malone forces claim six votes out of the nine, while there is no secret of the fact that Winters is looking to Mellon for aid. To date, Mellon has maintained a hands-off policy, although it is known that he has discussed with various leaders the proposition of aiding Winters. He will be home today from his holiday visit to New York and is expected to announce his definite stand in regard to that fight.

It developed today that the County Commissioners may have another plum to dispose of after the first of the year. Thomas Flanigan being reported as considering resigning his post as chief clerk of the Board for the Assessment and Revision of Taxes to devote all of his time to the aldermanic office in the First Ward to which he was elected in November.

Harry Lutz, Democrat, made a member of that board through the influence of Commissioner James Houlahen, probably will get his walking papers within a few weeks, according to reports today. His place, it was said, will not be at the disposal of C. C. McGovern, Independent, the new minority commissioner, but will be filled by Armstrong and Babcock.

SLAYS WIFE, SELF

before her husband turned the revolver on her.

Mrs. Goughenour received two bullets in the left breast, two in the left hand and one in the right leg. Her husband sent a bullet through his head at the left temple.

The couple had seven children, Anna being the youngest. John, 24; George, 26; Thelma, 30; Walter, 16, and Anna are at home and two married daughters live out of town.

Goughenour formerly was employed as a machinist by the Baltimore and Ohio Railroad, but had not been working for two years, his sons said. He tried repeatedly to obtain employment, they told police, and returned home yesterday afternoon in a terrible rage because he was refused employment because of his age.

"I'll not be a bother to anyone," he is said to have declared to his wife last night, but none of the members of his family thought his inability to obtain employment had affected him so much. The family arose as usual this morning, the two older sons and a daughter going to work without an inkling that anything was troubling their father. The youngest son hardly had left the house before Goughenour and his wife began to quarrel.

Mrs. Goughenour evidently had been preparing to iron the family wash when the trouble started. She was found at the head of a flight of stairs leading to the basement laundry. Goughenour's body was found in the kitchen.

GUATEMALA ADOPTS LINDY

GUATEMALA CITY, Guatemala, Dec. 29.—(AP.)—The capital of the "Land of the Eagle" today entertained its adopted son, the Lone Eagle, who came here on a mission of goodwill. Col. Charles A. Lindbergh completed the first and longest leg of his Central American flight over a hazardous mountainous country in less time than he had expected.

The spirit of St. Louis performed magnificently on the trip of about 675 miles from Mexico City, Lindbergh said. Seven hours and five minutes after he left Mexico City he landed at Aurora Field here at 1:40 p. m. (Central time).

Lindbergh had estimated that the flight might take nine hours and the crowds were still wending their way toward the field when the plane appeared between the peaks of the extinct volcanos Fuego and Agho (fire and water).

Guatemala accepted him as a friend and the city conferred upon him the title "Adopted Son of Guatemala City."

When Lindbergh arrived he received a message of felicitation from President Coolidge and others from the President of Salvador and the ministry of war of Salvador.

"Hello, Guatemala," Lindbergh said as he stepped from the plane. "Wonderful, what a joy," he added.

Lindbergh expects to resume his Central American tour tomorrow morning. Several hours after his arrival he returned to the flying field and inspected the Spirit of St. Louis. He found it to be in perfect condition for the continuation of his flight to Belize, British Honduras.

He will land there if the athletic field is in a suitable condition, otherwise he expects to continue on to San Salvador. Should he land at Belize, which is without a flying field, he intends to fly to San Salvador January 1, remaining there two days.

Will Tries to Aid Bank Head to Die Poor

WILL ROGERS

BEVERLY HILLS, Cal., Dec. 29.—You have all heard of the tremendous success of a bank called the Bank of Italy. Well, in Tuesday's papers was a very unique statement by its founder, Mr. Gianini. He said he was making no personal fortune from it, didn't want to, that he only wanted to help other people, and wanted to die poor. Well, when I read it I went right down to his main bank to see how he would help other people. I put in a bid for a loan to try and do all I could to make him die poor and the funny part about it is that this fellow is on the level with it, he really is practicing it. I got the loan, so hurry up and get in everybody before he turns banker.

of Dwight W. Morrow, new American ambassador, will count heavily in its favor in the negotiations with Thomas W. Lamont, until recently Mr. Morrow's partner in J. P. Morgan & Company. The Morgan firm, through Lamont, represents the American bondholders who are seeking to salvage something from the loans they made Mexico three years ago.

The recent decision of the Mexican Supreme Court and the congressional action obeying the Calles mandate that the petroleum law must be modified are counted upon to create an atmosphere favorable to Mexico's wishes. The central Mexican idea is to strengthen the belief in American official and banking circles that the Calles government is kindly disposed toward American enterprise.

Mr. Morrow, it is hoped, has been so impressed by recent incidents in Mexico that he will be inclined to look favorably upon any attempt by his former partners in the House of Morgan's to assist President Calles in modifying the schedule of debt payments.

Under the Pani-Lamont agreement, Mexico was granted a period of partial moratorium in the meeting of its external debt. A very curtailed schedule of payments until January 1, 1928, was provided in the hope that by then the Calles government would be able to pay full service on its obligations.

Six months ago, however, it became apparent that Mexico could not even meet the curtailed schedule. Government revenues dwindled as industry and commerce declined in the face of the Mexican administration's policies. Finally, it became necessary for the New York bankers to set up special credits for Mexico which might enable the republic to appear to meet its payments.

But, during 1928, under the Pani-Lamont agreement, Mexico must pay on its foreign debt approximately $15,000,000 in interest and $32,000,000 in amortization. In addition, the internal debt calls for payments through the year aggregating nearly $12,000,000, making a grand total of almost $60,000,000.

Mexico's finances are regarded as in no condition to withstand this strain. In the last four months for which figures are available, the gold reserve of the Bank of Mexico has tumbled from $9,000,000 to $6,500,000, and there is reason to believe that today it is even lower. Meantime, the silver on hand has dropped from $6,500,000 to barely $2,800,000.

Confronted with such a desperate situation, Mexico has only one place to which to turn—New York. European investors, having invariably lost whatever they loaned to Mexico over a period of more than 100 years, are in no mood to take on any more risks. But the United States, it is hoped, will be in a mood to deal more leniently with a neighbor nation which makes a point of appearing to be most friendly.

COURT UPHOLDS LIQUOR BAN

The revocation of the 1927 liquor permit issued to P. G. Walter, retail druggist of Chestnut street, North Side, by Prohibition Administrator John D. Pennington, was upheld in an opinion by Judge R. M. Gibson, in Federal Court today.

Walter's permit to sell liquor for medical purposes, issued January 28, last, was revoked May 6, the local administrator finding that Walter had violated the act by selling more than one pint of liquor to the same person within 10 days on a number of occasions.

Walter appealed on the ground that the violations complained of had been committed prior to the issuance of the 1927 permit.

DETECTIVE SHAKEUP PENDS

City detectives who cannot stand the gaff, mentally or physically, are due for a toboggan ride. Police Supt. Peter P. Walsh admitted to day that a shakeup in the detective bureau was pending and a "survival-of-the-fittest" policy had been adopted by both him and Director of Public Safety James M. Clark.

The superintendent ordered every member of the bureau to submit a report of his activities for the last three months. The reports will be put under the glass and given a close scrutiny. If any are found indicating that the sleuth has been laying down on the job, his head will be tagged for the basket. The reports also will be checked in regard to the detectives' knowledge of police affairs.

Those who survive this test, the superintendent said, would, before their jobs are secure, have to successfully pass a physical examination. The examinations will start January 1 and will be in charge of Chief City Surgeon Daniel E. Sable. "The detective department is the eye and brains of a police department," Supt. Walsh said. "If thieves are to be captured and crime prevented, men physically and mentally capable are necessary."

PITTSBURGH MAN KILLS SELF

NEW CASTLE, Pa., Dec. 29.—F. E. Luck, 65, a Pittsburgh coal dealer, committed suicide yesterday by hanging himself in the out kitchen of his home at 134 Oakland avenue, according to a report made to the coroner. Luck married Mrs. Eliza Schick Pastors, a local widow, about a month ago and came here to live at her residence. He conducted a coal yard in Pittsburgh.

A note, reading, "forgive me, too many troubles, insane," was found and it prompted a search of the house. Luck had sent his wife to Pittsburgh to see about his business and during her absence took his life, police say.

PUPILS TREAD SOFTLY IN 60 YEAR OLD SCHOOL

REPAIRS RUSHED DURING VACATION AT LINCOLN SCHOOL

The Lincoln School, Lincoln and Frankstown avenues, to which parents have refused to send their children, owing to fear that the building might collapse. Workmen are rushing reinforcement work this week while pupils are on vacation. More than 1,100 pupils are enrolled in the school and Miss Maude E. Milholland, principal, some time ago stopped all physical exercises and massed marching from the building because of its shakiness. A Christmas play to be held in the building was cancelled because of unsafe condition of building, and teachers are said to have refused to teach class if repairs were not made speedily.

ART CLASS ROOM

The picture shows columns running from basement, between desks in the art class room, sustaining the huge girder against the ceiling and then continuing to the next floor above. The wooden braces shown in the picture will be removed when the concrete at the base of the column in the basement sets. Engineers say the building will then be entirely safe.

TWO ARRESTED IN HOLDUP AT ALDINE THEATER

CHORINES GIVE POLICE CLUE

Identified as the gunmen who held up and robbed the Aldine Theater of $5,000, December 17, Robert O'Neil, of Philadelphia, and Al Lytton, of Pittsburgh, were brought back here from Youngstown where they were arrested, and lodged in Central Police Station.

The capture of the two alleged bandits followed a description of them sent to Youngstown police by Pittsburgh detectives. They were arrested in a cafe frequented by chorines. The men, denying their implication in the Aldine Theater holdup, waived extradition and were brought here by Detectives P. E. Moran and Vincent Cavanaugh. They are believed to have been connected with other holdups here.

The clue to their capture was furnished by two chorus girls who performed at the Aldine shortly after the holdup. The men followed the girls, who sent the mens' descriptions to detectives. The descriptions corresponded to those given by Assistant Manager Jerry Murphy of the Aldine, and their arrest by Youngstown police followed. Murphy identified the men at a stand-up in Youngstown. The money was not recovered.

'FOX' CONFESSES NEW MURDER

bandits shot their way out of the place.

Both of the killer bandits escaped without any loot.

Although Hunt was arrested in Alhambra, a suburb and one of the bases of Hickman's operations during the days that the "Fox" plotted to obtain $1,500 ransom from Perry M. Parker, Los Angeles banker and father of his little captive, the sheriff's office announced that Hunt was in no way involved in the kidnaping and murder of Marian Parker.

VOLUNTEERS CONFESSION

Hickman made his cold-blooded confession in the office of Jailer Dewar on the eve of his day in court for the kidnaping and ruthless slaying of the little Parker girl.

He was summoned to the jailer's office late last night and finished his amazing recital of his past crimes early this morning.

The confession of the drug store murder was made voluntarily by Hickman, while the under-sheriff and jailer were questioning the prisoner regarding his previous criminal record. Jailer Dewar casually asked him whether he had committed any murder before the slaying of the Parker girl, when Hickman volunteered the statement that a bullet from a revolver, wielded by him, killed the druggist.

Police reports showed that one of the two bandits who held up the Rose Hill Pharmacy had been wounded as they fled.

Policeman Don J. Oliver, who was in the store at the time the place was shot up, had his revolver shot from his hand by a bandit's bullet. A second bullet glanced from a suspender button.

Hunt had been employed at the First National Bank of Los Angeles as a messenger until September last.

This is the same bank from which Hickman was discharged last June following his confession that he had forged checks.

It was Perry M. Parker, father of the slain Marian, who as personnel officer, refused to reinstate Hickman in the bank after he was paroled on the forgery charges.

This action on the part of Parker led police to believe Hickman kidnaped and killed the banker's daughter for revenge.

EXPECT INSANITY PLEA

The belief that Hickman will enter an insanity plea when arraigned today in the indictment charging him with the kidnaping and murder of little Marian Parker spurred police and district attorney's offices in their efforts to clinch the state's case against the confessed slayer.

Just what defense, if any, Hickman will make when he is brought before Superior Judge Carlos Hardy at 2 o'clock this afternoon, hinges upon the decision of his attorney, Jerome Walsh, who was due to reach here from Kansas City at an early hour today.

Walsh has wired authorities that no court action be taken against Hickman until he can have a talk with his client.

Meanwhile, Sheriff William I. Traeger has given orders prohibiting anyone from interviewing Hickman in the county jail without first obtaining written permission to see the prisoner. These permits must come from District Attorney Keyes personally.

The first intimation that Hickman would alter his announced decision to plead guilty to the kidnaping and murder charges came when he requested that he be furnished a copy of his written confession.

This request was made by Hickman in a note sent from his cell to Detective Chief Herman Cline.

"Please bring my copies of the confession to the jail today. I want to read them," Hickman wrote to Cline, signing his name in full to the request — "William Edward Hickman."

Cline, however, refused to accede, saying he would give the requested copy to Hickman's attorney and no one else.

LINKED TO STRANGLING

Whether Hickman was responsible for the murder of a young girl in Milwaukee, Wis., who was found strangled to death on October 11, last, was being investigated today.

The new investigation was requested by Chief of Police Lannenheimer, of Milwaukee, in a telegram to authorities here which read:

"We had young girl murdered by strangulation Tuesday, October 11, 1927. Suspect answers description of your man Hickman. Understand Hickman was in Chicago October 17, 1927. Please ascertain from Hickman cautiously where he was from October 3, 1927, to October 17, 1927. Also if he had Ford coupe during that time and if so where he disposed of car."

SHOWS IRON NERVE

LOS ANGELES, Dec. 29.—(AP.)—The iron nerve of William Edward Hickman was shown in his newest confession—that of the killing of Ivy Thomas, Rosehill, Cal., druggist, in a drug store holdup battle a year ago. The confession was made public by the police this morning after they had arrested Welby Hunt, Alhambra, Cal., youth, who later admitted his part in the robbery.

The confession read in part:

"We (Hunt and Hickman) needed money and that afternoon we saw this place (the drug store) as we drove by and we said we would come back and get it that night. It looked like it ought to be an easy place.

"And when we came back that night we had masks and we entered the store and told the man and the woman that were in there to hold up their hands and go towards the back. There were two or three customers in the store and we made all these people go back towards the back. There were two doors in the back of the store, one on each side, and my partner went through the door to the right. Welby Hunt backed the druggist and his wife ahead of him and I went through the door to the left with the customers, forcing them inside the little room in the back of the store.

FIRES ON POLICEMAN

"When we got in the back we saw the officer of the law standing in the rear and I called Welby to take his gun, as I had my gun on him, but before he attempted this the officer wheeled about in a position just opposite me. He started firing his gun at me and just at the same time I started firing at him—and Welby started firing. I was firing directly at the policeman as far as I knew, and I judged that Welby was firing at the policeman, although I did not have time to watch him.

"When several shots had been fired and only a few seconds elapsed we both started to run from the store. I left first. As Welby left the store he was limping. When we got in the car he acted like he had been shot and said he had been shot. I drove the car and we hurried back to the room in the Alto Hotel.

"We came in the back way and entered our apartment and I took off Welby's overcoat and his other coat and opened his shirt to see just how he was shot. It seemed that two bullets just cut the flesh on his right shoulder. There were two cuts on his right shoulder. I saw they were not serious and took a wet cloth and bathed the wounds. Then I noticed on his left shoulder a hole where I thought a bullet had entered. It seemed as if the bullet had gone in and struck the left shoulder blade and came out."

After the Rosehill robbery and shooting, Hickman said, he and Hunt went to San Francisco, where they staged three robberies.

STOLE SEVERAL AUTOS

They stole four or five automobiles, later to abandon them and on January 15 returned by boat to Los Angeles.

They made their home with Mrs. Carrie M. Brickle, of Alhambra, Hunt's grandmother. Hickman said that although she did not at first know of their criminal activities she learned of them later.

"That was after my mother came to California," Hickman said. "We had our revolvers in a suitcase but they were not discovered until sometime after my mother came out here. We decided to take the guns apart and throw them away and to destroy everything we had in connection with work."

The automobile used in the Rosehill holdup, Hickman said, was a Chrysler sedan, which he and Hunt had stolen in Kansas City and which they drove to the coast. The car was stolen, he said, on Linwood boulevard just off Main street. The car was unoccupied and unlocked and Hunt drove it away while Hickman followed in a rented car.

LIEUT. KELLY FLIES TO HOME IN GROVE CITY

GROVE CITY, Pa., Dec. 29.—Lieut. Oakley Kelly, who with Lieut. J. A. Macready made the first non-stop flight from coast to coast in 1923, flew from Vancouver, Wash., to visit his parents here.

Holdup-Murder Aide of "Fox" Is Old Chum

KANSAS CITY, Dec. 29—(AP.)—Welby Hunt, implicated by William Edward Hickman in the slaying a year ago of Ivy Thomas, Rosehill, Cal., druggist, was a graduate of Northeast High School in 1926 and was a companion of Hickman.

Hunt went to California with Hickman, last December, Hunt's mother, Mrs. W. H. Wehring, of Kansas City, said today. She said her son and Hickman lived at the home of her stepmother, in Alhambra, until Hickman's family went to California after Hickman became involved in forgery.

DENY DRIVE ON FOR MELLON

lon said, he learned that the reports originated in Washington, but he was unable to trace them to their source.

NEWS TO FRIENDS

Leaders of the Mellon organization in Pennsylvania today claimed to have no knowledge of reports that Secretary of the Treasury A. W. Mellon is seriously considering being a candidate for the Republican presidential nomination and that plans have been arranged for a campaign in his interests.

"I never heard of such a thing," said W. L. Mellon, Republican state chairman and nephew of the secretary, when he returned here this morning from New York.

Former Congressman James Francis Burke, counsel for the Republican national committee, who is mentioned as assisting in arranging the campaign, also denied any knowledge that such a movement is contemplated.

"I know of no organized effort on the part of Secretary Mellon or his friends," he said. "I am wholeheartedly for Secretary Mellon and I believe he would make a good President, but I know of no organized campaign for him."

WRITING MELLON ARTICLE

Mr. Burke was asked concerning a report that he is aiding in the preparation of a book about the achievements of Secretary Mellon which, it is whispered, will be used as the opening gun of the Mellon-for-President campaign.

"I have been asked to contribute an article about Secretary Mellon to be used in a book," he said. "I don't know that the book has anything to do with the presidency. While I believe that Secretary Mellon would make a good President, and while many others feel the same way, I know of no effort being made on his behalf to secure the nomination."

Although reports of an organized campaign for Secretary Mellon were denied there is every likelihood that the Pennsylvania delegation to the Kansas City convention next June will cast a practically unanimous vote for him as a favorite-son candidate. There is a possibility that this vote, intended at the start of the balloting as a compliment, may develop into a movement that will sweep the convention, especially if a free-for-all battle for the nomination threatens to deadlock the gathering.

FIGHT OVER DELEGATES

The problem of selecting a slate of candidates for delegates to the national convention will be discussed at a series of conferences in which State Chairman Mellon and the various county leaders will participate. This work probably will be started late next month. Unless plans are changed, the Mellon organization will adhere to the usual Pennsylvania program of sending an uninstructed delegation to the convention. This year the election of delegates is complicated by the possibility of a senatorial fight, with David A. Reed seeking another term and, possibly, William S. Vare trying to be elected again to the seat which the Senate has refused to give him. A senatorial fight may result in breaking the slate of delegates supported by the Mellon organization, but even that contingency is not likely to seriously interfere with the proposal to give Secretary Mellon a complimentary vote as a favorite son.

Secretary Mellon frequently has been mentioned as the outstanding Republican presidential possibility since President Coolidge issued his famous "I do not choose to run" statement. The latest rumors that Mellon is seriously considering being a candidate seem to center in Pittsburgh, where political and industrial leaders are reported to be mapping out a systematic campaign. This campaign, reports say, is two-fold in character; first, an educational movement starting with the book mentioned above to show the voting public Secretary Mellon's merits and achievements and second, a drive for delegates in various states. One story today was that the leaders of the movement are so anxious to get their drive under way that men who write the "educational" book have been promised large remuneration for "quick copy."

You Meet Septics in the movies!

There is a certain fastidiousness which habits of cleanliness cannot achieve alone. The person you sometimes suspect of carelessness may have bathed within the hour.

If you are a septic, soap and water will not solve the difficulty. Nor will any refreshant neutralize unpleasant vaporings of the body, or the breath for any length of time.

Nobody is septic by nature. It is a condition anyone can correct. Just a few days are sufficient to take the taint out of perspiration, and render one's breath as pure as can be; and this perfect personal cleanliness made permanent. Ask any doctor—or nurse—about calcium

You may not know whether you are a septic. Try some calcium wafers, and see! If there is any stagnant matter in the system, everything will speedily be sweet and clean. Your skin will be less acrid; color improved; calcium correction even brightens eyes and whitens teeth! And you will never need another harsh cathartic from the time you have learned to prevent even semi-constipation by just occasionally taking a tiny calcium tablet.

A five-day test will prove to you very conclusively the system's need for calcium, and the decided benefit from these little wafers. Your druggist has them—the test size for pocket is 10c. Or the family size, 60c.

HICKMAN WRITES OWN STORY

Bares Movements in Kidnaping

LOS ANGELES, Dec. 29.—The Examiner prints today a supplemental confession by Edward Hickman, given in his jail cell to Morris Lavine of the Examiner staff.

The new confession was written by Hickman in his own handwriting and in his own language. In thought, sequence and phrasing it is practical identical with the official confession given on the train to District Attorney Keyes. It was given by Hickman freely and voluntarily.

Hickman's own story:

I feel that the people of Los Angeles and Los Angeles county should hear my full story concerning the kidnaping and murder of Marian Parker. I have confessed to the authorities, but I want the satisfaction of knowing that the public will see every phase of the crime.

My object in kidnaping Marian Parker was for a ransom to defray my college expenses. On Wednesday, December 14, I just took up my plans to kidnap Mr. P. M. Parker's daughter. I obtained his address from the telephone book and watched his home Wednesday afternoon to see whether he still lived at 1631 South Wilton place, and that the girl I saw with him at the First National Bank was really his daughter.

I saw Mr. Parker and his wife drive home in an Essex coach and between 3 and 4 o'clock I saw the little girl riding her red bicycle in front of her home, after she returned from school.

Early Thursday morning I was again parked near the Parker home, and saw two little girls leave the house about 8 o'clock. I followed and saw them board a red car on Venice boulevard, and I followed the street car until the children got off. I saw that they entered the Mount Vernon Junior High School, but the girls never saw me or suspected being followed, as far as I knew.

At about 12:30 Thursday I returned to the school, parked my Chrysler coupe in front, and entered the attendant's office to ask for the daughter of Mr. P. M. Parker, 1631 South Wilton place. The teacher informed me there were two Parker children, so I then asked for the younger daughter. I did this, because the girl I saw riding the bicycle on Wednesday was the smaller of the two children, who left the Parker home Thursday morning, and I judged this girl to be the younger. I did not know the first name but I was asked if it was Marian. I replied "Yes," and stated that the girls' father had been in an automobile accident. I gave my name as Cooper and said that I was employed at the bank with Marian's father. The teacher sent for Marian, who came to the office immediately, and after I told her about her father's mishap she readily left the school with me and entered my car.

We drove out through Glendale, and when I found a quiet place outside the city I stopped the car. I told Marian that nothing had happened to her father and that I had deceived her. She didn't understand my meaning, but I told her that I wanted some money from her father and would have to hold her for two or three days. When she discovered that I had kidnaped her, she did not make the slightest attempt to leave the car or cry out. I explained to her, that I was taking a chance in holding her, and that I would have to fix her so that she could not get out of the car or betray me. I placed a handkerchief about her eyes and tied cloth bandages around her ankles and wrists. Marian then began to sob and plead with me to unfasten her. She said she was frightened by the dark and promised not to move or say anything if I would remove the blindfold and bandages. Her simple, earnest manner convinced me that she would keep her word, so I granted her wish and allowed her to ride beside me untied and able to see where I drove. We came back to Los Angeles, where I mailed the first special delivery letter to her father. I left this letter at the main postoffice and Marian sat in the car out in front until I returned. Then we drove out through Pasadena, where I sent the first telegram. I left Marian again in the car while I wrote and sent the message. I wanted to reach Mr. Parker and warn him before he called the police. The letter which I had written before going to the school would not be delivered for two or three hours or perhaps longer, so I sent the telegram for this reason.

WENT TO PICTURE SHOW.

When I returned to the car Marian was sitting quietly as I told her, and we then drove to Foothill boulevard and out beyond Azusa. Marian enjoyed the drive and talked very much. She talked about the family, telling me about her mother and brother and her twin sister. She said her brother had a "tin can," meaning a Ford roadster, and that he went to college. She said her mother was easily excited and that she was always afraid that she would meet with some accident. On the way back toward Los Angeles, she related a dream which she had had only a few days before. She said she dreamed that someone called for her at school and took her away, but was not certain whether she was kidnaped in her dream. Marian confessed that she talked too much and that she guessed that she was just a foolish little kid. She told me to watch out for her aunt because one lived in Pasadena and another on Figueroa street.

When we returned we stopped in Alhambra, and I sent the second telegram to her father. I sent this one because I remembered making a mistake in the address of the first. Marian remained in the car as before and when I started again I asked her if she would like to go to a theater. She said "yes," so I drove to the Rialto Theater in South Pasadena and Marian and I entered the show just as naturally as a brother and sister. "Figures Don't Lie," was the photoplay and there were several acts of vaudeville. We both laughed heartily during the entire performance.

We left the theater about 10 p. m. and I drove direct to my apartment house (Bellevue Arms). We remained in the car, which was parked by the side entrance, until I saw a chance to enter without being observed. Marian followed a few steps behind me and we reached my room (No. 315) without being noticed by anyone. Marian chose to sleep on a large couch in the main room of the apartment. She pulled off her shoes and laid down instantly. She had a large pillow and used a double blanket for a cover. She was quiet and seemed to go to sleep right away. I fixed a reading lamp at the door so that it cast a dim light over the room and made it possible for me to watch her if she tried to leave the apartment.

CHILD WRITES TO FATHER.

I should mention here that, when I first told Marian about my plans to hold her, I showed her an automatic revolver. I explained how it worked and showed her the bullets, so she very probably obeyed me so well because of fear that I might shoot her, although I didn't threaten her life at any time.

I went to sleep feeling sure that Marian would not try to escape. Next morning I was up by 7:30 and Marian was already awake and was sobbing in a handkerchief. I didn't say anything until I made some breakfast. I asked Marian if she cared to eat, but she said she wasn't hungry. I finished my own breakfast and asked Marian if she wanted to write her parents a note. I told her to say that her father must follow my plans, but allowed her to write the note in her own words, which she did willingly. I also wrote a letter to her father and after Marian had read it I enclosed it with her note in the same envelope. I explained to the child that I would have to make the situation seem worse to her father than it really was, so that he would be more eager to give me the money. Marian knew my plans as well as I did and although she said she didn't know whether her father had the money or not, she hoped that he would get it for me. Marian stopped her crying, when she began her note and she explained that her tears were for her parents.

I told Marian that I would leave her in the apartment while I went downtown and mailed the second letter and bought some newspapers. I had her to sit in a straight chair and I tied cloth strips around her ankles and wrists, fastening them to the chair, but not tight enough to cause her any discomfort. I did not blindfold or gag her and it was possible for her to call for help, but I found her when I returned, just as I had left her, and she said that no one had come to the door or tried to get in the room. I had the papers with the big headlines of Marian's

TOO MANY FRIENDS

Entertaining men and women friends in the family home, where all became intoxicated, were among the reasons Anna E. Bartels gave Judge Harry Rowand for wanting a divorce from Howard B. Bartels, who has granted Mrs. Bartels a decree. On one occasion, Mrs. Bartels testified that her husband threatened her life and used abusive language at another time, when she made him late for the ball game. When she remonstrated regarding his conduct Bartels bumped her head against a wall and also attempted to choke her, she said.

abduction and when she first saw them she cried, but she later enjoyed seeing her picture in the news and reading about the account of the kidnaping.

TOOK CHILD RIDING.

Marian did not want to remain in the apartment during the day. She asked to go riding and I took the risk to please her. We drove toward San Diego through Santa Ana and San Juan Capistrano. While we stopped in Santa Ana at a Richfield station for gas, the attendant made a searching glance at Marian and we both feared that he might have suspected us, but we forgot about this incident later. We turned back toward Los Angeles a few miles south of San Juan Capistrano. It was then about 3 or 4 p. m. and it was after six when we reached the city limits. I purchased some evening papers on East Seventh and Marian read the latest news to me as I drove toward downtown. I parked the car just south of Seventh street on Los Angeles street, and left Marian in the car, while I called her father from a booth in the P. E. station near Sixth and Main streets. I called twice and the line was busy both times. I went back to the car and we drove north to Sunset boulevard. It was about 8 o'clock when we came to a drug store on Sunset near Angelus Temple. Marian stayed in the car and I called her father. He said he had the money in his pocket and would meet me anywhere. I said I'd call him back later and went back to the car.

We drove on out Sunset to Western avenue, south on Western to Venice boulevard and then west on Venice to Wilton place. We drove right by the house just to see if any excitement was going on around the place. We turned back and stopped at another drug store at Wilton place and Pico street. I got Mr. Parker on the phone and told him to bring the money, get in the car alone and drive north on Wilton to Tenth, then right one short block to Gramercy street, and park just north of Tenth on Gramercy and wait for us. I went back to the car, and we both watched to see Marian's father drive by. In a short while we saw him coming, but two other cars seemed to be following his car and I suspected that they contained detectives. I was positive of this, when I followed the cars north on Wilton, because as I turned right at Tenth behind them they stopped suddenly and I had to back up and go straight on Wilton because I didn't want them to look back and see us. I saw these two cars later when I turned off Wilton.

FIRST IDEA OF KILLING.

They were slowly circling about near where I told Mr. Parker to wait, so I gave up the idea of meeting him Friday evening and took Marian back to the apartment. She cried some as we drove back because of this disappointment.

No one saw us as we entered the apartment this second time. We entered by the side door as before and Marian slept again on the couch. I promised her that we would meet her father the next morning and she went to sleep satisfied. Marian had very little to eat that day except for a few bites before going to bed. She said that she wasn't hungry, so I didn't worry about it.

Saturday morning we were both up early. I told Marian to write another letter to her father telling him not to bring anyone with him at the next meeting. I also wrote a letter and sealed it with Marian's note in the same envelope. I told her that I would fix her in the straight chair like I did Friday, until I mailed the letter and got the morning newspapers. This time, however, I blindfolded her. She told me to hurry and come back, because she wanted to go home, when I got back.

At this time when I had Marian tied to the chair and placed in a small nook adjoining the bathroom with her back toward me my intention to murder her became fixed. I hurried to the kitchen and got a rolling pin but hesitated to use it for fear I would not strike a sudden fatal blow. Instead I secured a dish towel and returned to the child. I placed the towel gently about her neck and explained that it would rest her head. I did not give her a second's chance to doubt, but with a desperate tug at the towel drew it tightly around her throat, and without uttering any sound she was strangled to death in about two or three minutes.

I left the apartment, but before I did so I wrote the final chance terms and put them in the same envelope with Marian's note and my third letter. I mailed the letter and went to the Loew's State theater, but I sobbed through the entire performance. I returned to the apartment about 5:30 p. m. and then drove to Elysian park. I returned to the apartment about 6 o'clock, got the body but fixed its eyes open with thread before I left.

I drove to Sixth and Western avenue, where I called Mr. Parker and told him to come to Manhattan place just north of Fifth street shortly after 7 o'clock. I took the body from the suit case and left the suit case in the street between Fifth and Sixth streets on Manhattan place. I drove around the neighborhood until I saw Mr. Parker's car at the appointed place. I tied a white handkerchief about my face and drove up along the side of his car. Raising a sawed-off shotgun to the window, I warned him to be careful. I showed him the face of his daughter, and when he asked if she was alive, I said she was asleep. I demanded the money and he handed it over instantly. Then I drove a short distance ahead of his car, drew to the side of the street, and when I stopped, I opened the door of the car and leaned over to place the body on the edge of the fender. It rolled over on to the parking and I hurried away. Before meeting Mr. Parker, I turned one number back from each side of my rear license plate. I drove downtown and left the car in a parking station at Ninth and Grand streets.

DESCRIBES MURDER MOTIVE

The following are the motives which prompted me to kill Marian Parker and dissect her body.

In the first place, I feared that my apartment might be searched on Saturday and the girl would be found. The search was spreading over the city and I expected that the Bellevue apartments would be searched any time. I was afraid to leave her there or take her out. My instinct to protect myself and avoid suspicion or arrest at this dangerous time caused me to use this terrible caution. In killing the girl and hiding parts of the body I hoped to avoid notice if searched. It would also be possible to safely transfer the suitcase without suspicion and make it possible for me to secure the ransom without danger of being stopped and caught before reaching the place of meeting. I considered the ransom, or this means of securing college expense more important than the life of Marian. I had the idea that I should get what I wanted, without regard to the cost. Since my high school days I had suffered from a peculiar complex. As a diversion from my school studies, a desire to commit crime seemed to gradually overcome and control me. I reasoned with religion and drew the conclusion that it was not based upon absolute reason. My extreme sensitiveness and pride caused me to suffer much discomfort from society. This, together with my deep thoughts on religious differences and variances brought a terrible shock to my sense of morality and helps to explain this complex under which I have suffered. I do not think that I am crazy or insane, but I believe this complex borders closely to insanity and cannot be considered too lightly as my motive in this crime.

Marian Parker had confidence in me, which I did not dare to shake for fear that she would attempt to escape and bring about my capture. If I had refused to take her home Saturday morning she would have doubted me for the first time and tried to escape. Yet I could not take her out in broad daylight for fear of a trap. Therefore if I killed her so suddenly and unexpectedly that she would not suffer any conscious torture as she never had cause to before, I would still have left her confidence and trust in me unshaken and be able to accomplish my plans to secure the ransom. This motive has some bearing on the crime, but I want the public to consider my complex as the weakness which brought me to this crime. In the sudden impulse of the moment this fiendish desire which had grown for years found a chance to express itself.

THIEF ESCAPES AMID SHOTS

Amid a rain of bullets an auto thief escaped from Woods Run police in Riverview Park last night.

The chase began in Woods Run avenue. Found riding in a car stolen from H. S. Brewer, 28 Mairdale avenue, for which the police were searching, a young man leaped from the machine and jumped aboard another car believed to have been driven by a pal. It was driven rapidly into Riverview Park. The police followed and opened fire, but the man escaped.

SLASHES THROAT IN JAIL

His throat slashed with a safety razor blade, George H. Lytton, 55, of 1292 Lincoln road, Columbus, O., was found early this morning on the floor of a cell in the Wilkinsburg Police Station. He had registered at the police station last night as a lodger.

Sergt. Walter Magee removed Lytton to the Columbia Hospital where, it was stated, his condition was serious. Another lodger witnessed the alleged suicide attempt.

FIGURES SHOW DECREASE IN CRIME

Crime in Allegheny County decreased during 1927, while the machinery for disposing of crimes was speeded up considerably, according to statistics prepared for the annual report of District Attorney Samuel H. Gardner by George Conner, chief clerk.

During the year five grand juries returned 3,527 true bills, compared to 3,848 in 1926, 4,073 in 1925, and 4,504 in 1924. The February grand jury returned 734, April 566, June 680, September 823 and November 719. Speeding of the grand jury work by Assistant District Attorney Ralph Hunter is shown by the average of more than 60 cases disposed of daily during the 75 grand jury working days. Preparation of indictments, particularly the more involved ones, as in the election cases, was the work of Assistant District Attorney H. R. Phillips.

RECORD TRUCK SHOWN HERE

The show room of the General Motors Truck Company, 3701-35 Liberty avenue, is a busy place. Crowds are inspecting the first truck that set a trancontinental record of 137 2-5 hours between New York and San Francisco, while carrying a Columbian steel truck body with a 550 gallon capacity liquid load. This truck is on exhibit today, tomorrow and Saturday.

A chassis of the same model as the transcontinental record-making truck was placed nearby so truck owners could compare the two.

Veteran truck operators were surprised to find that the two trucks were identical in every respect, except tire equipment. They believed that a special chassis, reinforced with special cross members, would be necessary to withstand the punishment of a transcontinental trip at sustained high speed, 26.828 miles per hour, W. M. Kelley, the local branch manager, said.

According to Cannon-Ball Baker, who drove the truck from New York to San Francisco, only four cars passed him during the entire run—two empty transcontinental buses and two high-powered passenger cars.

Only six quarts of water and but two quarts of oil were used by the truck on the trip, Baker stated in his final report to P. L. Emerson, vice president directing sales of the General Motors Truck Company.

Gimbel Brothers Store in Philadelphia

Philadelphia, birthplace of a nation has ever held a peculiar, inviting charm for American youth. The story of the boy, Franklin, entering the city with a parcel of clothes under one arm and a parcel of bread under the other has somehow challenged each successive generation of American boys. That the Gimbel Idea, grown to maturity in Milwaukee should choose Philadelphia for expansion ground is altogether logical.

In 1894 Gimbel Brothers opened its doors in Philadelphia—a city of numerous stores but where the Gimbel Idea of service was a distinct departure. So rapid was the growth of the store that constant additions were necessary. And last year a completely new store was erected to augment the work of the Chestnut Street Store. The beautiful new store is dedicated to the modern woman who has been so constant in her approval of the Gimbel Idea of Service.

Recently a young Gimbel, son and namesake of Ellis Gimbel, long active head of the Philadelphia store, was called into the father's office. "Son," said Ellis Gimbel, "you are through with college, you are coming into the business—and before you come I would like to say, 'you are Ellis Gimbel, you have my name, whatever you do will reflect on me—son, be proud of the name.'" It is the father himself who tells that the boy merely turned and said, "Ditto, dad."

It is the spirit of the Gimbel. The accomplishments of one generation are but the starting point of the next. Such is the controlling spirit today of Gimbels six gigantic stores. Such is the retail force that has opened up the markets of the world. Such is the youthful, vigorous merchandising power that is today figuring in the lives of twenty per cent of the American people.

Joe Falvo, 14, of 212 Shetland avenue, scowled.

"He goes to Westinghouse High," Bebe carried on, "but he won't go. And he's trouble around the house."

Arrangements are being made to make room for Joe at Juvenile Court Detention Home.

PLANE FAILS TO TAKE AIR

DAYTONA BEACH, Fla., Dec. 29.—(INS.)—After running along the Ormond-Daytona beach for three and one half miles in an attempt to take off on their world endurance flight, Edward F. Schlee and William S. Brock, round the world fliers, were unable today to get their heavy monoplane, "Pride of Detroit," into the air. A wooden propellor installed for the flight was said to be the reason for the plane's inability to leave the ground. It was replaced immediately by the original steel one.

Another attempt to take off will be made tomorrow.

Complete Remodeling Of Keenan Building

The Keenan Building, Liberty avenue and Seventh street, considered an outstanding example of business architecture, has been remodeled and furnished with the best of modern equipment. The work has been done at a cost of more than $250,000.

Centrally located in the downtown district, the building is now able to offer tenants excellent office facilities. Alterations and improvements to the building have been designed by Hunting, Davis and Dunnells, Pittsburgh architects.

S. W. Rubin, present owner of the building, purchased it last May from the City Real Estate Holdings Company for $900,000. He immediately had plans prepared for the improvements now completed.

A feature in the work done in the building is a bank of four new electric elevators. These are the latest type, capable of a speed of 650 feet a minute, and are controlled by an automatic signal system which holds them on schedule and registers in fading lights in the first floor lobby. All elevators are equipped with hollow metal doors.

The lobby has been fitted with new marble, a special grade of Pavanozza. It shows delicate tints in greens and browns and was the last block of its kind available. The ceiling of the lobby is done in colors enriched with gold.

The floors have been replaced with a modern flint terrazzo. The corridors on the upper floors have been refinished in white marble. The exterior walls of the building, in enameled brick and terra cotta, have been cleaned and beautified. Windows have been equipped with weather proofing.

The Keenan Building was constructed in 1902 by Col. Thomas J. Keenan. Its dome, constructed of gilded tile, is a replica of that of the Congressional Library in Washington. Although the building is well rented, a few suites are still available.

"KEENAN BUILDING—PITTSBURGH" AN ADDRESS OF DISTINCTION
LIBERTY AT SEVENTH ST., FACING SIXTH AVENUE

FIND FOSTER GOT $15,635 IN TWICE-PAID TAXES

M'GOVERN TO ADVERTISE REFUNDS

Twice-paid taxes by residents of Allegheny county during the incumbency of County Treasurer Samuel D. Foster, from 1924 to 1927, inclusive, totaled $56,309.34, of which $40,674.06 was refunded, leaving $15,635.28 unaccounted for, it was testified at Controller C. C. McGovern's audit hearing.

The figures were gleaned from two memorandum books of Foster's seized yesterday by McGovern who charged that taxes paid in duplicate were not refunded unless demand was made on the treasurer.

McGovern said he would place in the newspapers an advertisement of names of taxpayers who paid twice, so they may obtain the refund due them.

McGovern encountered a blank wall in trying to ascertain the amount of taxes exonerated by the Board of Tax Revision and Assessment. Samuel Eades, chief clerk of the board testified no record of the total exonerations is kept. The County Commissioners act finally on requests for exonerations due to fire-damaged properties and other reasons, Eades said, and if requests are granted a slip is made out and turned over tothe Controller's office.

"You should be able to get this total from your own office," Eades shot back at McGovern who referred caustically to the revision board's inability to provide totals on exonerations.

"Such autocratic methods in a tax office would not be tolerated in Russia," commented McGovern.

He brought out that salaries in the tax office are $400,000 a year.

The Controller produced requisition receipts for gasoline supplied to county employes at the county's central garage. The majority of the slips, the Controller said, charged the employe with more gasoline than could have been placed in the employe's automobile gas tank.

The Controller could not solve the problem of how more gasoline could be placed in a container than it could hold. To prove that something was fishy about the thing, the Controller had the gas tank of the county-owned machine assigned to him tested. Not more than 20 gallons could be put into the tank. At the garage, the Controller was charged up with several gallons more than the capacity of the tank. John Opperman, clerk in charge of the garage, was summoned. He failed to give any light on the puzzle.

FRAT SESSION SEES COLLEGE MORALS O. K.

The twentieth national convention of the Delta Sigma Phi fraternity opened at the William Penn Hotel today with 500 delegates from all parts of the country in attendance. The three-day meeting will be concluded with a ball on New Year's Eve.

In his opening address, John C Harris, of Dallas, Tex., national president, declared: "The enjoyment of real brotherhood comes nearer perfection in our colleges through the fraternity system than through any other form of organization."

The Rev. J. W. Claudy delivered the invocation and Mayor Charles H. Kline the address of welcome. Mrs. A. B. Lynn, president of Pittsburgh chapter of the Southern Club, spoke.

A. W. Defenderfer, the general secretary, gave out a statement today in which he said that the current criticism of the morals of college youths was unwarranted.

"Two Black Crows" Try in Vain To Live Down Their Records And Escape Their Own Voices

By GEORGE SEIBEL

GEORGE SEIBEL

TWO haunted men are at the Nixon Theater this week, making the people out front merry with their quips, while they themselves are trying desperately to escape from themselves. "It's like meeting your own ghost wherever you turn," said Charles Mack, one of the Two Black Crows. "Worse than that," said George Moran, the other Crow, "it's like looking at your own embalmed mummy every morning when you wake up." These blackface comedians are being pursued everywhere by the records they have made for talking machines. Their records have literally broken all records. They visited Charlie Chaplin at Hollywood, and to entertain them he put "Two Black Crows" on the Victrola. They visited Governor Fuller of Massachusetts, and to entertain them he put "Two Black Crows" on the Victrola. "One of us is pretty sure to get to heaven some day," said Mack; "and the other one is pretty sure to get to the other place," added Moran; "but we both expect to be greeted with the 'Two Black Crows' on our arrival," they concluded in chorus.

Nearly three million records have been sold of the three so far made. Mack saw the first shipment, eleven truckloads, of No. 3 at Baltimore the other day. Laid end to end the records sold so far would reach from Pittsburgh far beyond Chicago. Piled one on top of the other they would make a tower nearly fifty feet high. Caruso and Galli-Curci are the only songbirds that have attained to a popularity approaching the Two Black Crows.

It was not always thus. Both men have had a hard struggle since they were born—down in Missouri, George Moran at Elwood, near St. Joe, and Charles Mack at White Cloud, near Kansas City. Both have been in minstrel shows at the time when this form of entertainment was beginning to decline. Moran was with George Christy, and Mack was last with Hi Henry in 1906. Then there was a blackface team called Mack and West, followed by Swor and Mack, until just twelve years ago the present partnership was formed and has proved such a success.

Both comedians are of Irish descent, with one-quarter German admixture. Their vernacular, like Topsy, just "growed." It is that tired feeling translated into words. You grease the vocal chords with molasses, breathe gently, and there you are.

"The taste of burnt cork isn't so bad," said Mack in conclusion, "if we could only get away from our records. We'd do anything to live them down, but we can't. We'd even play 'Othello' if we could decide which one of us has to wash his face and do Iago. We'd have a new ending for 'Othello,' too. Desdemona was always putting his speech to the Senate on the Victrola. That's why he killed her. Do you blame the poor man?"

Lewis Stone With Jannings at Paramount

Lewis Stone is to return to the Paramount lot, after four years' absence, to support Emil Jannings in the German star's next starring vehicle, "The Patriot." Stone will play the role of Count Pahlen, originally intended for Jannings, who is to play Czar Paul, son of Catherine the Great. Stone's last screen role was in "The Private Life of Helen of Troy."

Evelyn Brent will have the feminine lead and other leading roles are to be enacted by Vera Veronina and Tullio Carminati.

"The Patriot" is based on the story "Paul the First," from the pen of Merejkowski, which tells of the colorful reign of Czar Paul's four years of insane rule, until he was murdered, as an act of patriotism, by Pahlen, who had been his closest friend and counsellor.

Dorothy Kitchen, an Unknown, Re-Christened Nancy Drexel and Wins Movie Role With Murnau

By LOUELLA O. PARSONS,
Motion Picture Editor of Universal Service

LOS ANGELES, Dec. 29.

HER name is Dorothy Kitchen. She is blonde, petite, and she has plenty of personality. She came West about a year ago with letters from the late Philip Payne and other well-known New Yorkers. At the time they gave her a chance doing extra bits, but she was never able to get more than mob scenes.

Then Winfield Sheehan saw her and made a test of her. He showed it to F. W. Murnau of "Sunrise" fame, who agreed with Mr. Sheehan the girl had great possibilities. To make a long story short, Miss Kitchen was cast for one of the leading feminine parts in "The Four Devils," the next Murnau production.

But—just a moment. Miss Kitchen will not have such a homely name when she appears for the Fox Company. She has been rechristened Nancy Drexel. Fox's signing of this unknown marks the fourth company within a week to start grooming an unknown for possible stardom. Looks as if 1928 will be the year for new faces.

Or, perhaps, it is the Christmas spirit. Who can say?

What is there so funny about a clumsy detective? I don't know only it is one of those sure-fire "gags" that is always good for a laugh in the theaters. Look at "the gorilla"—what would it have been without Mulligan and Garrity? Metro-Goldwyn-Mayer is banking on the popularity of this very thing by putting George K. Arthur and Karl Dane in a mystery thriller with the unmistakable title of "The Detectives." R. Hugh Herbert, Chester Franklin and Del Lord are collaborating on the story and if they pattern their idea after "The Gorilla," without actually copying the plot, they cannot go far wrong. Am I right or wrong? The public at the moment is greatly interested in this sort of screen play.

'SHOW BOAT' HIT IN GOTHAM

NEW YORK, Dec. 29.—Unanimous, unqualified approval greeted the premiere of "Show Boat," the new musical drama presented by Florenz Ziegfeld in the Ziegfeld Theater. Even the most conservative of the newspaper critics acclaimed it an emphatic, instantaneous hit.

A resume of the reviews indicated that most of the critics were driven deep into the dictionary in quest of superlatives to express their enthusiasm over the spectacle. All agreed that "Show Boat" represents the greatest of Ziegfeldian productions, and estimates of its probable run extended far into years.

The New York Times asserted:

"From such remote centers of theatrical omniscience as Pittsburgh, Washington and Philadelphia had come the advance word that it was better than good—some reports even extravagantly had it that here was Mr. Ziegfeld's superlative achievement. It would be difficult to quarrel with such tidings, for last night's performance came perilously near to realizing the most fulsome of them.

"Then, too, 'Show Boat' has an exceptionally tuneful score—the most lilting and satisfactory that the wily Jerome Kern has contrived in several seasons. Potential song hits were as common last night as top hats. Such musical recordings of amorous reaction as 'You Are In Love,' 'I Can't Help Lovin' That Man,' 'Why Do I Love You?' are sufficient for any show—to say nothing of 'Old Man River,' which Jules Bledsoe and a Negro chorus make remarkably effective.

"If these three contributions—book, lyrics and score—call for a string of laudatory adjectives, the production compels that they be repeated again—and with a short tiger. The colorful scenes on and around the show-boat plying its course along the Mississippi, that comprise the first act lend themselves well to a variety of effects and have been achieved with Mr. Ziegfeld's unimpeachable skill and taste."

"KING OF KINGS" SCHEDULED

Cecil B. De Mille's biblical photoplay, "The King of Kings," will be shown for the first time in Pittsburgh next week, in the Nixon, opening with a special New Year's Day matinee, Monday, January 2. There will be shows at 2:30 and 8:30 daily. Seats were on sale in the box office today.

The engagement of Florence Reed in "The Shanghai Gesture," in the Alvin, will extend into a second week, seats for which were placed on sale today. There will be a special New Year's matinee Monday.

Seats were placed on sale today for the second week of "Saturday's Children," the Maxwell Anderson domestic comedy, which begins the last week of the engagement in the Pitt next Monday, with a holiday matinee.

Eddie Foy, in "The Fallen Star," will be the Keith-Albee headliner in the Davis next week. The picture will be "No Place to Go," featuring Mary Astor and Lloyd Hughes.

New Year's week and anniversary celebration in the Harris theater will feature "Tramp, Tramp, Tramp," with George Hall, William Mack and other singers and funmakers. The screen presentation will be Patsy Ruth Miller in "South Sea Love."

"Chickie," classical dancer, will be an added attraction with "Dancin' Around," the burlesque production that will be the New Year's week attraction in the Gayety, opening with a special midnight show next Sunday.

"Stolen Sweets" will be the burlesque next week at the Academy, with Charles Davis in the principal comedy role. Gus Flaig, who wrote the book, is one of the principals in the cast.

New Year's Day and, incidentally, the beginning of the thirtieth anniversary of the Harris Amusement Company will find in the Sheridan Square as the headline attractions, one Guy Voyer & Comapny, in a minature musical comedy, "So This Is Marriage." The photoplay feature will be Madge Bellamy in "Very Confidential."

Madge Bellamy, in "Very Confidential," will be seen on the Olympic screen next week. Gigli will be seen and heard on the Vitaphone.

Mary Carr, who is well-known for her portrayal of mother roles in motion pictures, is in "On Your Toes," starring Reginald Denny, which opens Monday in Loew's Aldine. Barbara Worth is the leading woman.

The screen feature in the Grand next week presents Clara Bow as the star in "Get Your Man." A stage attraction will be Clarion Trumpeters, a quartet of girl instrumentalists.

H. B. Warner is the Sorrell of "Sorrell and Son," coming to Loew's and United Artists' Penn theater next week. In the cast are Alice Joyce and Anna Q. Nilsson.

Parachute Jumper Signed for Air Photoplay

Ralph Douglas, champion parachute jumper, has been signed by the Caddo Company for service in the air-thriller, "Hell's Angels." Douglas will be the parachute technician on the air spectacle, and he may also perform in some of the crashes and stunts which will be highlights of the picture.

Douglas is a well-known movie dare-devil and stunt flyer. He won the world's parachute championship at San Diego, Cal., November 16, when he dropped 5,500 feet from a 10,000 foot altitude, before pulling the rip-cord of his chute.

Douglas was engaged by Howard Hughes, president of the Caddo Company, to take charge of all parachute details on "Hell's Angels." Every pilot, cameraman and player in the Caddo air-movie will be equipped with parachutes, and Douglas will make sure they are properly attired and instructed in what to do in the event of emergencies.

PATRICIA PITT'S SPRIGHTLY COMMENT ON PITTSBURGH SOCIETY HAPPENINGS

Debutante Season Nears Close as Pittsburgh's Social Set Makes Plans for Stay in South

THE debutantes' first season is slowly drawing to a reluctant close. A few parties are scheduled for the first part of January, and, of course, there are still quite a few this week, but a great many Pittsburghers are winding up their social affairs and are planning to leave within two or three weeks for the South.

Today saw an interesting luncheon given for both a debutante—the popular Suzanne Trimble—and a recent bride, Mrs. James W. Henry, Jr., the former Frances Hornecker. The party was given in the Longue Vue Country Club by Mrs. James W. Henry, Sr., and Mrs. Arthur Bliss Sheets, both of Bigelow boulevard. Mrs. Henry and Mrs. Sheets seated the young people of the debutante and college groups at two large tables of 12 each, and the other guests were placed at smaller tables. About 100 were present, and the rooms were decorated with poinsettias and silver foliage.

The hostesses were assisted by Mrs. Harold Boyd Hershman, Mrs. Harcourt Newell Trimble, Suzanne's mother; Miss Frances Elizabeth Henry, Mrs. Harry Murdoch and Mrs. Raymond Hemphill, of Akron, O., Mrs. Sheets' daughter, who is spending the holidays with her.

Another party is being arranged for two girls who have been much entertained this season. They are Elizabeth Lewis, daughter of Mrs. Laura Fawell Lewis, of Amberson avenue, who is to be married to John Follansbee on February 2; and one of the winter's debutantes, Anne Louise Marshall, daughter of the Lea Holmes Marshalls, of Dunmoyle place, and they will be guests of honor at a tea which Mrs. Harry E. Sheldon, of Beechwood boulevard, and her daughter, Mrs. William McKelvy, of Kinsman road, are to give Friday afternoon, January 6, in the Twentieth Century Club.

It is interesting to know that Mrs. James B. Oliver, of Shields, and her niece, Mrs. David Ross, are expecting to sail early in January for Rome, where they will visit Mrs. Oliver's daughter, the Marchesa Dusmet de Smours, the former Edith Oliver. Mrs. Oliver and her niece are planning to travel through Egypt after they leave Rome.

From Sewickley has come the announcement of the engagement of a most popular girl, Forsyth Patterson. Her father and mother, the Charles Forsyth Pattersons, have announced the betrothal to David Meade Gilmore, son of the Edward D. Gilmores, also of Sewickley, with no wedding date set as yet. Since her debut two or three seasons ago, Forsyth has been active in all the social and philanthropic affairs of the younger group, both in Sewickley and in Pittsburgh.

Elizabeth George, who came out at a tea given the first day of December by her mother, Mrs. William D. George of Sewickley, was guest of honor at a ball which her parents gave last night in the Allegheny Country Club.

A rather unique touch was given the decorations for the party by the placing of wooden soldiers at each doorway leading into the ballroom, which, itself, was adorned with Christmas trees and crystal and silver flowers. On the supper table was a miniature Santa Claus and his reindeer.

Elizabeth wore white chiffon embroidered with silver and carried yellow Pernet roses, and her mother's gown was of pale lavender chiffon. She wore a corsage of Cattelya orchids. The debutante's sister, Rebekah, who made her bow to society last year, received with them, wearing white net fashioned with a full skirt and tight bodice.

Preceding the ball, the George Hubbard Clapps, of Edgeworth gave a dinner in the Edgeworth Club for Elizabeth and another Sewickley bud, Elizabeth Rutan. The guests were seated at two long tables and, of course, Christmas decorations were used.

Mrs. Clarence P. Byrnes is arranging to give a breakfast on New Year's Day in her home in Academy avenue, Sewickley, for Elizabeth George.

At a really beautiful wedding yesterday at 5:30 o'clock in Trinity Episcopal Church, Dorothy Deuel, daughter of the Henry Austin Deuels of the Schenley apartments, was married to the Rev. Henry Scott Rubel of Brightwaters, Long Island. The Rt. Rev. Alexander Mann, bishop of Pittsburgh, performed the ceremony before an altar banked with chrysanthemums and Christmas greens.

Dorothy, who was given in marriage by her father, wore a gown of ivory satin fashioned in court bouffant style, extending into a long train, over which fell the rose point lace veil. A panel of the rose point fell from the yoke of the gown. She carried, instead of the conventional bouquet, a huge muff of white satin and chiffon showered with white orchids, sweetheart roses and lilies of the valley.

Her sister, Mrs. Andrew Lawrence Riker, Jr., who was Eleanor Deuel before her marriage last June, was matron of honor, appearing in Du Barry rose taffeta, the skirt circling down until it touched the floor in the back, and her hat was a large affair of rose weighted at one side with a large flower. She carried green orchids, snapdragon and roses. The bride's young brother, Harry Austin Deuel, Jr., wearing an Eton suit of cream linen, carried the ring on a white satin pillow. The flower girls were Nancy and Gladys, twin daughters of the Harry McLains, wearing French frocks of peach crepe de chine and Irish lace, with directoire poke bonnets of jade. They carried baskets of white roses and daisies. Donald Clarke Rubel of Germantown was his brother's best man, and the ushers included Andrew Lawrence Riker, Jr., of Fairfield, Conn., and William E. Schmertz III of this city.

A reception and supper followed the ceremony in the home of Mr. and Mrs. Henry Hornbostel in the Schenley apartments. Mrs. Deuel wore tan chiffon over gold cloth, with a hat of ashes of roses and gold lace, while Mrs. Hornbostel appeared in black chiffon with a black hat.

The young Rubels will leave at the end of the week for Milwaukee, where they will make their home.

At a dinner given in the Congress Clubhouse last night by Mr. and Mrs. Charles Droste of Benton avenue, North Side, announcement was made of the engagement of their daughter, Miss Clara Dorothy Droste, to Thomas L. Ford. There were 80 guests, and a musical program was given by Mrs. Francis Schreiner Lane, soprano, and Mrs. Bertha Gross King, pianist, with dance numbers by Miss Betty Evans and Miss Maxine Taylor. No wedding date has been set.

Mrs. Eleanor M. Kelly of Bellefonte street announces the engagement of her daughter, Susan Pennell Kelly, to J. Paul Butler, son of Mr. and Mrs. William M. Jenkins of Beechwood boulevard.

Mr. Butler's sister, Mrs. Ralph D. Schmertz of Inverness street, entertained at dinner in her home last night for her brother and his fiancee. There were 20 guests.

At a bridge tea given yesterday afternoon in the Pittsburgh Country Club by Mrs. Harry A. Snively, of College avenue, announcement was made of the engagement of her daughter, Helen Adaline Snively, to Nevin Truog Brenner, son of Mr. and Mrs. Ernest J. Brenner, of Ben Avon. The engagement will terminate in a spring wedding.

In the presence of only the immediate families, the wedding of Miss Elizabeth Dowler Husted, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. George V. Husted, of South Main street, Washington, Pa., and Courtney Allan Ingals, son of Mr. and Mrs. Walter F. Ingals, of Crafton, took place Tuesday morning at 11 o'clock in the Husted home with the bride's uncle, the Rev. A. E. Husted, of this city, officiating, assisted by the Rev. J. F. Jose, pastor of the First Methodist Episcopal Church of Washington. A breakfast for 25 followed the ceremony. After a motor trip in the South, Mr. and Mrs. Ingals will be at home in South Grandview avenue, Crafton. Mr. Ingals attended Mercersburg Academy and was graduated from Washington and Jefferson College. He is a member of the Delta Tau Delta fraternity.

Elmer Layden, football coach at Duquesne University and one of the "Four Horsemen" of Notre Dame fame, and George Lepig, a member of this year's varsity team, will be guests of honor at the annual ball of the Pittsburgh Club of Notre Dame to be held Monday night in the Pittsburgh Field Club. Other out of town guests will be Frank Donovan, of Grosse Point, Mich.; Harley McDevitt, of Passaic; Miss Katherine Wilhelmey, of Cleveland; Miss Katherine Quindy, of Titusville, and James Maher, of New York.

Mrs. Herman Koch, Mrs. H. C. Reller, Mrs. John W. Schreiber, Mrs. W. W. Wattles, Miss Elizabeth Siebert and Mrs. W. Steinmeyer will be hostesses tomorrow afternoon at the reception and tea to be given in the Lutheran Student House in honor of Sister Martha Pretzlaff, superintendent of the Passavant Hospital, and Sisters Bertha Barts and Bilda Bothe, also of the hospital.

Mrs. William Molamphy, of Friendship avenue, has made known the marriage of her daughter, Miss Helen Marie Molamphy, to Albert Thomas Stanton, of Pittsburgh and Detroit, son of Mrs. Margaret Stanton, of South Millvale avenue, which was solemnized yesterday morning in St. Lawrence's Catholic Church by the Rev. Philip A. Callery. After January 15, Mr. and Mrs. Stanton will be at home in Longfellow avenue, Detroit.

Chartiers Council, Knights of Columbus, will hold the third in a series of card parties tonight in the clubhouse, Crafton. Francis A. Roney is general chairman.

TONG HEAD HERE DIES

Georgie Lee, organizer of the Hip Sing Tong in Pittsburgh's Chinatown, died yesterday in the St. Francis Hospital. Physicians say he died from pneumonia.

Lee was taken to the hospital a month ago. While in the hospital, he was shorn of his power as the Hip Sing chieftan. This broke his heart, his tong cousins say, and caused his death.

Lee organized the Hip Sing Society here three years ago. A feudal war between the On Leongs and the Hip Sings ended when a year ago a truce was made. Lee has had many narrow escapes from enemy bullets. He was arrested by police several times for carrying concealed weapons, but was never convicted.

REMUS' FATE LEFT WITH DOCTORS

By International News Service.

CINCINNATI, O., Dec. 29.—Whether George Remus will be permitted to go free or committed to a state asylum for the insane, today rests with three doctors and a judge.

Late yesterday the sanity hearing in Probate Court, which was made necessary by the "Not guilty on sole grounds of insanity" verdict returned by a jury which tried him for murdering his wife, Imogene, was concluded.

Judge William Lueders announced that he would take the case under advisement and give his decision after conferring with the three alienists who, with him, presided over the hearing.

Mrs. Mary Remus, mother of the defendant, one of the concluding witnesses, spoke in German, her testimony being given through interpreters. She declared her son had always been good to her.

Remus was himself placed on the stand and questioned concerning his mentality. He denied that he had ever said he was greater than Napoleon.

"In Chicago they called me the 'Napoleon of the bar.' I am not responsible for what they called me," he pointed out.

He also denied that he ever struck his mother. Opinions of a number of witnesses who testified earlier in the hearing were to the effect that, while Remus might be sane it would be dangerous to permit him to go free, since he is emotionally unstable and has expressed bitterness towards Franklin Dodge, federal prohibition agent, whom he accused of carrying on an affair with Mrs. Remus.

U. S. SHIP LINES FOR SALE

By Universal Service.

WASHINGTON, Dec. 29.—The U. S. Shipping Board approved revised plans for selling its three remaining Pacific Coast cargo lines, the American Oriental Mail Line, the American Australia Orient Line, and the Oregon Oriental Line.

The lines will be offered for bidding on propositions to buy on a five-year guarantee and on a 10-year guarantee basis of operation, the interchange of ports being allowed under each plan.

Under the new plan purchasers will have the privilege of calling at all Pacific ports to take on and discharge cargo irrespective of the home port from which they trade.

In addition, the purchasers, as long as they provide the minimum number of sailings from home ports, can also make calls at all American, Canadian and Mexican Pacific Coast ports, Philippine ports or any Oriental ports.

The board believes that the new provisions will aid in securing the best offers obtainable from bidders and assure operation profitable to the purchasers and to the greatest benefit to the public.

HANNA WEDDING STIRS CAPITAL

WASHINGTON, Dec. 29.—(INS.)—Capital society was surprised today over the hasty and romantic marriage of Charlotte Hanna, 16-year-old daughter of Dan R. Hanna, of Cleveland, and Richard Hume, 22, son of a Washington broker.

The pair eloped to New York, secured a marriage license and returned to Washington, where they were married quietly by the Rev. H. L. Schnlinke, in a remote section of the city. Only the bride's sister, Mrs. Stanley Carr, was taken in on the secret. She was a witness.

The bride is a granddaughter of Mark Hanna, and a niece of Mrs. Medill McCormick.

MONEY LOVE by BEATRICE BURTON

(Copyright, Central Press Association.)

Pat Advises Lily to Be Wise in Her Choice of Husbands and Goes

WHAT HAS GONE BEFORE

Lily Lexington is the spoiled and only daughter of the Cyrus Lexingtons, who have always lived far beyond their means. She realizes her highest ambition when she becomes engaged to Staley Drummond, a rich bachelor older than herself. Downtown to meet her chum, Sue Cain, she is attracted by Pat France, a taxi driver. She asks him to drive her home. On the way she learns that he is cab-driving to raise money to finance a new kind of piston ring he has invented. Pat tells her that he is selling the cab to raise money for the piston ring, and she miserably wonders how she'll see him after that. Staley tells her the age-difference between them doesn't matter and tenderly kisses her. Lily realizes that she hates his love-making. Mrs. Lexington announces the engagement just as Lily's made up her mind to tell Staley that she doesn't want to marry him, and she feels like a mouse in a trap—helpless. The Lexingtons decide to get a chauffeur, who turns out to be Pat. Lily confesses to him she loves him.

NOW GO ON WITH THE STORY.

"MR. DRUMMOND on the telephone, and he says will you send the car right back to his house for Mr. and Mrs. Lexington? They're coming home."

"Tell him I've gone to bed, Carrie, and that Pat will be at his house in 10 minutes," Lily sang out and after a tiny pause Carrie went to do her bidding.

"Carrie hates to tell lies for me," Lily said lightly. "Carrie's a good woman, and I think she's shocked at me most of the time."

"You do tell lies, don't you?" the man asked. "I haven't known you very long, and I've heard you tell two or three that were wows! Do you have to do it?"

Lily thought it over. "Pat," she sa' finally, "I have to lie because I'm living a lie. I'm pretending I'm the girl who wants to marry Staley Drummond, and I'm the girl who wants—Can't you see how things are with me? I'd marry you tonight and live on bread crusts and bare floors all the rest of my life if you'd ask me to."

"I wouldn't, though. I hope I have too much sense," Pat told her, gravely, getting into the car. "That would be great stuff for you for about three days—and then you'd wonder why you'd ever done it—Miss Lexington."

He started the motor and drove back to Staley Drummond's house.

CHAPTER XIII.

THE next morning Lily did an unheard of thing—for her. She got up at seven o'clock.

She bathed, brushed her bright hair until it shone like spun copper, powdered and painted her face with the greatest care, and slipped into a brand-new sports outfit that she had bought for her honeymoon. A cunning silky thing of sea-shell pink bound with white bread.

Two or three times, while she was dressing, she tiptoed out into the hall to look out of the back window and see if Pat was up.

The last time she went, she saw him. He was flat on his back on the driveway, doing something to the car. As she watched, he crawled from under it and got up, brushing off his clothes with a clean handkerchief. . . . How good-looking he was in his shirt-sleeves, with his head uncovered and the sun shining on his dark uneven waves of hair.

Lily caught her breath as she looked at him. She wanted to run down to him and put her hands in his hair and lay her cheek close against his lean sunburned face... She never had felt that way about a man before. Never.

She could hardly wait to finish dressing. She pulled on her slippers, gave one last look at herself in the mirror and hurried down the back stairs.

The back stairs opened into the kitchen. And as Lily opened the door at the top of them an appetizing odor of frying eggs and sizzling ham came up to her.

She heard Carrie's voice: "Sit right down, Pat. The morning paper's there on the table, and your cigarettes beside them..... And how do you like your coffee? Weak, or strong enough to float a battleship?"

Lily went on down into the kitchen.

Carrie stood at the stove, getting breakfast for two. There were two plates warming in the hot closet. The coffee tray on the kitchen table had two cups and saucers, two spoons, two tiny pitchers of cream upon it.

And on the screened porch beyond the kitchen the table was set for two! In the center of it stood a little glass vase of flowers, and it was covered with a shining white linen cloth!—The "help's" tablecloths were always colored ones in the Lexington household.

"Coffee for two, eh, Carrie?" Lily asked, her voice sharp with sarcasm.

Carrie started, turned around and flushed. Lily saw that she had "crimped" her hair for this early-morning occasion, had put talcum powder on her nose, and a large lace collar around the neck of her uniform. She looked as pretty as a peach.

"Just let mother catch her wearing that collar to work in!" thought Lily. "And just let her find the best table-linen out on that porch table!"

"I was just getting the new chauffeur a bite to eat," explained Carrie, getting pinker and pinker. "I thought I'd sit down with him, just to be sociable. Aggie went home last night and ain't back yet, so there's just the two of us this morning. I beat up a little biscuit."

Guiltily she opened the oven door and took out a pan of golden-brown Parker House rolls. She covered them with a clean tea-towel and set them in the hot-closet.

"Pat won't have time for breakfast, so you needn't go to all these elaborate preparations," Lily told her coldly. "I'm going to a picnic, and he's going to drive me right away. Where's that picnic hamper of ours, Carrie? I want you to pack it for me right away. . . . I'll take those rolls along, and we can fill a thermos bottle with the coffee and boil some eggs."

On the top shelf in the pantry were dozens of cans—smoked salmon, baked beans in tomato sauce, sardines, dill pickles, pearl onions, ripe olives, spaghetti.

While Carrie was boiling the eggs and pouring the coffee into the thermos bottle, Lily stood on a chair and dropped tinned beans and olives and sardines into the picnic basket.

At seven forty-five she appeared before Pat in the backyard, holding it in her arms. She beamed at him, smiling because it was May and sunshiny and the day was before him.

"We're going to have a picnic," she said, and all her happiness was in the tones of her light voice. "Just you and I. . . . Here, take this basket and put it in the back of the car. I'm going to ride up in front with you."

He shook his head, his arms hanging at his sides. "We can't do it—You know we can't, he said quickly. "It's hopeless—and I'm going to quit my job here at the end of the week. I heard your Dad and your Mother talking last night in the car when I brought them home—Gosh! They look upon this Drummond guy as their son already. Why, you're as good as married now."

"Don't you stand there and tell me what I am! You put this basket in the car and we'll get out in the country some place where we can talk!—I'm a long way from being married to Staley Drummond, so just write that on your cuff, Mr. Taxicab!"

He shook his head again, stubbornly.

"You do as I tell you!" Lily told him at a shout. She stamped her foot on the cement of the driveway.

Carrie came out upon the back porch and pretended to be shaking crumbs out of a tablecloth that had no crumbs in it.

Lily knew she was listening. "Please let's go, Pat," she begged and put the heavy basket into the car herself. She slammed the door upon it. "You don't want Carrie to hear every word we say, do you?" Come on, hop in and show me some speed. Let's see if we can find a babbling brook by eight o'clock!"

"We shouldn't do it, you know," Pat said, but while he spoke he was getting into the car. Lily jumped in from the other side and they started.

"Carrie will probably run right upstairs and 'el' Mother that I've eloped with the chauffeur," she laughed as they rushed through the cool morning air that was sweet with the fragrance of lilacs and little new green leaves and young grass.

It seemed to blow all her troubles away, and for a minute she forgot Staley Drummond and the engraved wedding invitations that the stationer had delivered at the house yesterday, and the white satin wedding dress and the lace veil with its coronet of waxen orange blossoms all ready for the tenth of June. She forgot her mother and Sue Cain and the diamond engagement ring that she had left lying on the top of her dressing table.

"Well, here we are, Pat! Just you and I—and isn't it heavenly!" she sighed, and laid her cheek down against his sleeve.

Pat made a short grunting sound in his throat and shrugged one broad shoulder. "I don't know whether it's 'heavenly' or not," said he. "Your friend, Drummond, is going to be pretty sore when he stops at your house this morning and finds that you've gone on a picnic-trip with your chauffeur."

Lily didn't care. "I'll have this one day, anyway," she made up her mind. "And suppose Staley does stop at the house and find me gone? I can think up some kind of alibi to square things with him.

She giggled. "Carrie was certainly fixing you up a banquet this morning when I stopped her," she said. "Flowers on the table and the best silver, and a dish of bar-le-duc—Jimminy crickets, but it was funny. I never thought I'd have Carrie for a rival—" She stopped short at the grim half-angry look that crossed the face so close to hers.

"Yes, that's just it! You and I don't belong in the same class," he said gravely. "I belong to the class that works hard for its living, and you're at the top of the pack!—We're as far apart as the two poles, you and I."

It's your fault if we are, Pat. I want to be the best friend you have anywhere. But you keep pushing me away..... You keep telling me that I ought to be true to Staley Drummond when I don't want to be. I don't want anybody but you, Pat!—Ever!" She was swept off her feet by her feeling for him, in that moment.

Ever since the first day I saw you I've been chasing you, haven't I, Pat France? I've made a fool of myself—and I'm not through making a fool of myself. Pat, I want to marry you—now, today, before I can change my mind."

He did not answer.

But he slowed down the car, turned it in the road, and started back towards town.

"You're not taking me home?" asked Lily, and he shook his head.

"I want to show you something," he told her. "Better get into the back seat, hadn't you? You might pass Drummond or your friend, Miss Cain, or someone like that on the road—and it would look better for you to be back there where you belong."

"I'll stay right here," said Lily, her soft chin set firmly.

She sat quietly in her corner of the seat while they went back over the familiar ways to her own house. They swept past it, and on into town.

Through the business section they went to a humble section beyond the A. & B. railroad tracks—a section of little low houses with

EVEN BEAUTIES' GIFTS ARE MIXED AT YULETIDE

BUT MOZELLE'S A BIG GIRL NOW

Mozelle Ranson, "Miss Wheeling of 1927," got a fur coat for Christmas. "And how!" quoth her friend, Dorothy Bright, otherwise known as "Miss Dallas," as she tugs at the hem. Miss Ranson's uncle out west has evidently forgotten Mozelle is no longer just a little girl, but wait—

FRIEND DOROTHY IS HELPFUL

Uncle Jim also sent along a pair of shoes. "Wouldn't it squeeze your big pedal digit?" she asked as she tried her best to get into the footgear. "I guess you'll have to give them to me, dearie," suggested Dorothy. "I'll trade even Stephen—look what I got——"

Sons Guests of C. of C. Member Fathers

Sons of Pittsburgh Chamber of Commerce members last night walked right up and took front seats beside their sires at the annual Father-and-Son banquet and minstrel show. About 200 fathers and more than 500 sons filled the auditoium. The youngsters ranged from babes in arms to six-footers weighing more than 200 pounds, while the fathers represented all ages and all stages of baldness.

The prize winners were: W. B. Rodgers, father of the heaviest son, Jack Rodgers, weighing 200 pounds; James D. Cook, son of the baldest father, M. W. Cook; H. M. Phifer, father of the most sons, John P., J. B., C. G., R. L. and H. E. Phifer; Robert Lapham, tallest son of a Chamber member, W. W. Lapham, and Raymond A. Tucker, youngest father. L. E. Harris was chairman of the judges.

OPPOSED AS SUITOR, HE SHOOTS 2, KILLS SELF

A bullet in her breast, Mrs. Margaret Dubiach, 24, of 101 Superior street, Duquesne, is in McKeesport Hospital because she opposed attentions to her young sister by a man 22 years her senior. She is expected to recover, but the love story is closed forever, for the suitor is dead by his own hand. Helen, 4, daughter of Mrs. Dubiach, witnessed the shooting of her mother.

Peter Svilor, 40, shot Mrs. Dubiach and Mike Dimith, 21, of 102½ Superior street, and then sent a bullet through his own brain after an argument in Mrs. Dubiach's little candy store. Dimith, who, it seems, also opposed Svilor's romantic intentions, escaped with a bullet wound in the arm, but Svilor was dead soon after he was rushed to the hospital.

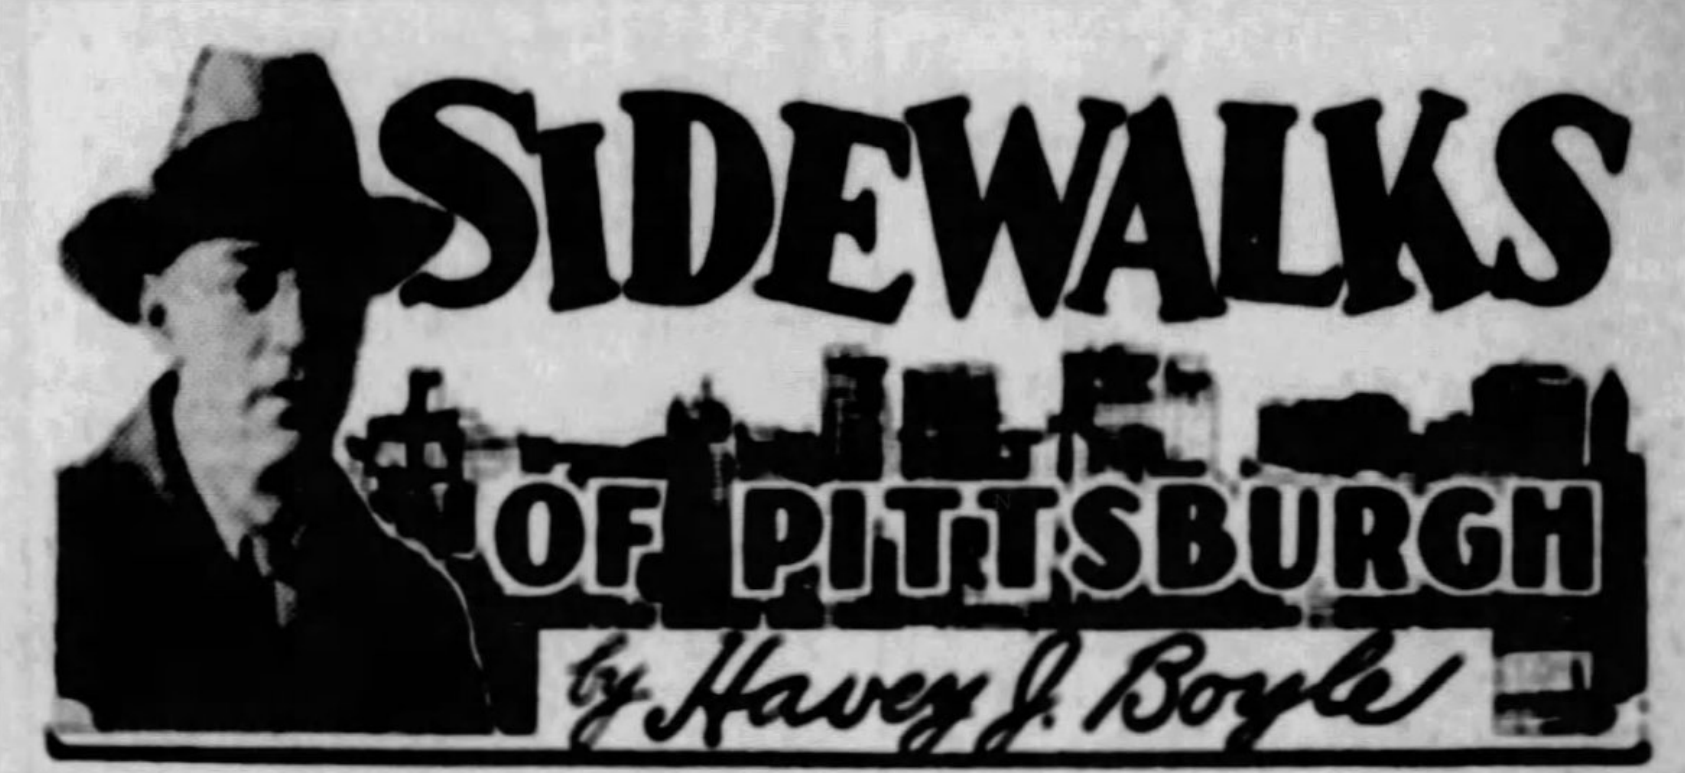
Olga Brakel, 18, was the girl with whom Svilor was in love. She was not present when her admirer sought to shoot down the forces that opposed his advances.

From her hospital bed Mrs. Dubiach said she had wanted her sister to be courted by younger men.

AFTER THIRD DIVORCE

MABEL TALIAFERRO

Married three times and divorced twice, Miss Taliaferro, movie and stage star, wants to even things up. She filed petition in Bridgeport, Conn., today against her current husband, Joseph P. O'Brien, of Hollywood. She charges cruelty.



THE state of matrimony, to describe it ecclesiastically, or the state of marriage, as it is called in a legal sense, is coming in for great research, inquiry and speculation. The rise in the divorce curve is one of the reasons. Judge Lindsey shocks the conventionally-minded with a frank treatise on what has come to be known as the companionate marriage while Mrs. Bertand Russell, spouse of a well-known philosopher, expounds theories that would cause a spinster to throw fits. I wanted to get the final word on the subject so I asked my friend at Fifth avenue and Grant street what it was all about.

I CAN SPOT 'EM AT 100 YARDS

My friend, you must know, is an authority on the subject. He has made marriage a life-work, so to say. He stands at his daylight vigil, inspecting the passing parade, and so expert is he that he can spot a foot-loose couple or a married one at 100 yards.

MY FRIEND is an incorrigible optimist. Within earshot of the travail and misery, distress and moanings coming from the hot rolls of the divorce mill within the court house, there he stands daily beckoning bashful swains and timid girls to an aldermanic altar just around the bend. This is his life work. He has been doing it for as long as I have been passing the point. Winter and summer, fall and spring he eases up to the couples that pass and urges them onward to the alderman who for a consideration tolls off the long count.

MY FRIEND is one of a small brigade of such social workers at the same point. He seems to be sergeant, out-ranking at least in easy decorum and expertness his comrades in the line. His work, of course, is not altogether altruistic. It must be understood that the laborer no matter what kind the vineyard is entitled to his hire. He works on a commission basis, getting a slice of the alderman's fee, and sometimes enjoying the generosity of a delirious groom who mayhap flips him a dollar or so for services rendered.

"THE nation," he says, "is wrong about this marriage business. Really, it's great stuff. I'm not a married man myself, but I have been observing marriages for a long time. I see my old customers years and years after I have performed my part of the contract. If the papers would herald the number of happily married couples as they herald those in distress there would be no great scare about divorce. Because it is better news, speaking in the words of a journalist, to read that Mr. Smith bounced a gridiron off Mrs. Smith's coco, a reason now why Mrs. Smith seeks liberty, than to read that another Mr. Smith this morning kissed his happy wife goodby, after he had kissed all the kids, we sometimes get the wrong slant on the married state. But you'll excuse me, I seem to smell orange blossoms in the air, and yonder beau seems to be walking with lightish air. By the great Harry, I am right. I must be away—here come two customers."

I WALKED away pondering, not especially about what I had heard, but about a new notion. It seems to me they should call those fellows who tie the knot altarmen. And this came right upon the heels of another one as I noticed the bride-to-be who had put on her rouge with just the right effect: "In this case," I caught myself saying, "discretion is the better part of pallor."

INSOFAR as I know only three Pittsburghers carry canes—Mr. Spreigle, a newspaperman; my friend, Mr. Florent Gibson, a newspaperman, and Mr. Albert Crouse, one-time prize fighter. Oh, yes, I forgot the bearded Italian I see on Wylie avenue, who wears a cane, and whose gloriously red and bulbous nose prompts the notion that he would rather be tight than president.

MONEY LOVE by BEATRICE BURTON

Pat Advises Lily to Be Wise in Her Choice of Husbands and Goes

neat little backyards, narrow sidewalks with children playing on them even at this early hour, and four-o'clock hedges—a neat clean little neighborhood of people who were not too poor and certainly not too rich. A neighborhood of the finest class in the world—the lower middle-class. The backbone of this great country of middle-class people.

The car turned into a little narrow street.

"This is where I live," said Pat. "In this next house."

The house was a low white one with dark brown shutters. The morning sun shone in its front windows so that it seemed to twinkle and wink from behind its neat white fence.

There were brown rocking chairs on the front porch, and big pots of begonias and scarlet geraniums. The curtains in the windows were crisp white dotted-muslin ones, and a white cat was curled up on one window ledge.

"Would you live in a house like that?" asked Pat. "And do every lick of work in it, yourself?"

CHAPTER XIV.

IF there was one thing in the world that Lily Lexington knew absolutely nothing about, that one thing was housework.

She never had swept a room, washed a panful of dishes, or boiled a kettle of water in her life. She never had so much as aired her own bed or hung up her nightgowns in the clothes closet.

She got up in the morning to a clean house, to a well-cooked breakfast served to her on a bed-de tray, to a household of which e was the petted and coddled arling.

And so she laughed and shook er head at Pat's question.

"Could I do all the work in that ouse? Why, Pat, I couldn't do e work in any house! I may s well be honest. If anyone gave e a basket of socks to be darned r a pan of dough to be made to loaves—well, I just wouldn't now how to set to work, that's ll."

Then her face grew sober. "But could learn, I suppose," she aid, slowly. "I'm awfully clever t picking up things . . . Why id you ask me if I'd live in a ouse like that?"

Pat neatly turned the car at the nd of the street and started own the other side. "Because ou said you'd marry me today," e told her. "And I wanted to ive you some idea of what arrying me would mean. It ould mean the hardest kind of ork, day in and day out, every ay in the year. You see that uilding next to our house?"

Lily nodded. It was a little wo-story building with a grocery store occupying the first floor.

A barrel of potatoes and a wooden rack covered with baskets of pansies stood on the sidewalk before it. The windows were filled with parsley and carrots and oranges and turnips. Beyond them were shelves stacked with bright-colored cans and pasteboard boxes, and in the doorway stood a rosy-cheeked little woman with steel-rimmed spectacles pushed up on her forehead, a plaid shawl around her shoulders, and the whitest of starched white aprons, standing out from her little waist.

"That's my mother, Lily," Pat said, quietly.

The little woman was not looking at them. She had an egg in her hand and she was studying the shell as if it were some rare discovery.

Pat laughed. "She's looking to see if the eggs are fresh or not," he said. "She always says she can tell a fresh egg by the look of the shell. I don't know whether she can or not, but she's a fine business woman."

"Business woman?" asked Lily. She did not look at all like Lily's notion of a business woman—that quaint little woman with her gray hair drawn back in an old-fashioned knot and a tiny plaid shawl pinned around her shoulders.

"Yeah," answered Pat, with his husky drawl. "That's our grocery store, and she helps dad to run it, besides taking care of the house and bringing up three children. That is, she did bring up three of us—my two sisters and myself. We're all grown now, of course."

The car had passed the grocery and the small white house, with its neat brown shutters and its geraniums. But Lily turned her lovely head and looked back at the two buildings.

"Why, she must be marvelous, Pat, to keep up a house and help your father, too!" she cried, her eyes meeting his in a look of admiring wonder. "My mother keeps two maids and a laundress and a cleaning woman all the time!"

"Besides me," said Pat with an odd smile. "I've promised to whitewash the basement for her this week. She explained that she wanted the house all cleaned up because her daughter was getting married the tenth of June."

Lily was silent. Somehow his words seemed to build up a wall between them once more. . . . He was the man who drove her father's car and took orders from her mother. The man who was to help clean the house for her wedding—for her marriage to Staley Drummond.

"Pat, let's not talk about my mother or your mother—or anyone but you and me," she said with a kind of little wailing cry. "Let's go and get married and think of everybody else afterward. . . . Pat, do you like me, no foolin'? I've run after you so much, myself, that sometimes it seems to me that all the love is on my side."

His big tanned hand, gripping hers so that she cried out with the sudden pain of it, answered that question for her.

"Well, then, why don't we get married—now—today?"

Well, ANYways, I'm TERribly disapPOINTed in them because I REALly think a MAN should sort of deVOTE himself to some SErious WORK in life instead of just spending their enTIRE time VIolently WOOing some atTRACtive GIRL and handing her a LINE or something because I think you get TERribly tired of a man who has simply NOTHing to do but sort of sit ROUND heavily and make elePHANtine EFforts to NECK you or something—you know the type! TOMORROW'S HOROSCOPE

Friday, December 30

No other science so confirms religion as astrology, for astrologers led the way to the manger of Jesus.—Rev. Gunsolas.

HOLIDAY activities continue to claim the attention, with rounds of ceaseless merrymaking and parties, all under the trine of Venus to Luna. There is sign of much extravagance and expenditure in the pursuit of pleasure.

It is necessary to sound a word of warning against accident and other disagreeable circumstance or untoward events propelled by haste and precipitate acts.

Those whose birthday it is should have a year of progress and prosperity, with cherished hopes and aspirations gratified. Pleasure as well as harmony and happiness hold high place in the affairs, but be careful of accident and dangers in travel and change; likewise keep the mind and conduct rational, poised.

A child born on this day may have many excellent talents and faculties for attaining success and happiness in life, despite a restless and changeable deeper nature which may lead to the occult and introspective and at times to the rash and queer.

Love's Embers

Absorbing Sequel to "Revelations of a Wife"

By ADELE GARRISON

With Better Understanding, Madge and Lillian Clear the Way for a Happy Summer

IT was with a distinct feeling of triumph that I leaned over and kissed Lillian when she announced her decision to come to the farm with her young daughter Marion. It had been a task which I had feared was impossible—this convincing her that Mary Harrison's repentance was so sincere and her character so changed that Marion would not be harmed by close association with her. But I had won, and I knew that never again would the question be raised.

Lillian is as royal in her amends as she is inexorable in her judgments. I recognized the tender, speculative look which had come into her eyes. Already she was planning how she could make up to Mary for the prejudice she had entertained against her. That Mary knew nothing of the elder woman's feeling mattered no whit to Lillian. It was her own sense of injustice done which she was trying to appease.

"Do you suppose Mary would care for a motor trip with Marion and me?" she asked. "You know I told you I was going to get a little car and take Marion on short house-hunting trips. I want a little place for summers—and that's no slight to the farmhouse either." She wrinkled her nose at me, but I caught a look in her eyes which told me that she feared my aversion to her plan.

"Before I answer your question about Mary," I told her with a smiling but intent look fixed upon her face, "I'm going to set myself right upon this question of your house hunting. I don't need to tell you that you and Marion are members of the family at the farmhouse and that we'd be glad always to have you with us. But I know how you feel about Marion having a home of her very own to which her friends can come, and I agree with you. I hope you find just the thing you wish, and I warn you that I shall be your most frequent guest—"

"If you use that word!" she threatened. "You mean that you'll be the first additional member of our family."

"Yes, that's better," I acquiesced. "And now I'm ready for that question about the motor trip. If you mean, take Mary for a trip of a day or two—fine. She'd love it. But kindly remember, my dear, that you haven't seen Marion very much this first year of her school, that you're both hungry for each other's companionship, and that these precious trips of yours, on which I know you have so counted, shouldn't be shared by anyone."

"But," she said, "I have misjudged the girl, and—"

"And, therefore, you think it would be a good thing for you to put sackcloth and ashes on your head," I gibed. "You're as bad as Mary, with her complex for confessing to everybody in sight, beginning with her grandmother. No, my dear, I'm going to take you in hand and loosen that ingrowing conscience of yours. I did think you were illogical and unjust in refusing to come to the farm because Mary lived there, but, having changed your mind so generously about that, don't go to the other extreme. Remember, Mary knows nothing about that attitude of yours, so no harm has been done. And if you let anything interfere with those precious jaunts of yours with Marion, I'll—I'll—well, my vengeance will be something terrible."

"I shiver to think of it," Lillian laughed. But there was a relieved note in her laughter which told me that she gladly welcomed my dictum.

"You know," she went on thoughtfully after a little, "I sacrificed one person to my desire to rear Marion in just the atmosphere I wanted, and the remembrance of it has troubled me not a little. I am glad you have saved me from having another piece of injustice on my conscience."

I suppose my face showed the absolute astonishment which was mine, for she laughed, yet with no mirth in the sound, as she said quietly:

"Didn't you know that I would have gone back to Harry if it hadn't been for Marion?"

Dinner Pineapple

In a casserole put raw, peeled and sliced sweet potatoes, pork chops or tenderloin, and a can of crushed pineapple. Salt the meat and potatoes lightly, sprinkle with brown sugar and the tiniest trace of cinnamon, and cook two to three hours in a slow oven. If a browner dish is liked, the meat may be seared on both sides before putting into the casserole. Lamb may replace the pork, but in that case it is well to remove all excess fat, as it is not so pleasant tasting as pork fat.

Famous Old Recipe for Cough Syrup

Easily and cheaply made at home, but it beats them all for quick results.

Thousands of housewives have found how to save two-thirds of the money usually spent for cough preparations, by using this well-known old recipe for making cough syrup. It is simple and cheap but it has no equal for results. It gives immediate relief, usually stopping an ordinary cough in 24 hours or less.

Get 2½ ounces of Pinex from any druggist, pour it into a pint bottle, and add plain granulated sugar syrup to make a full pint. If you prefer, use clarified honey, instead of sugar syrup. Either way, it tastes good, keeps perfectly, and lasts a family a long time.

It's truly astonishing how quickly it acts, penetrating through every air passage of the throat and lungs—loosens and raises the phlegm, soothes and heals the membranes, and gradually but surely the annoying throat tickle and dreaded cough disappear entirely. Nothing better for bronchitis, hoarseness or bronchial asthma.

Pinex is a special and highly concentrated compound of genuine Norway pine extract and palatable guaiacol, known the world over for its healing effect on membranes.

To avoid disappointment, ask your druggist for "2½ ounces of Pinex" with directions. Guaranteed to give absolute satisfaction or money promptly refunded. The Pinex Co., Ft. Wayne, Ind.

A THREE DAYS' COUGH IS YOUR DANGER SIGNAL

Persistent coughs and colds lead to serious trouble. You can stop them now with Creomulsion, an emulsified creosote that is pleasant to take. Creomulsion is a new medical discovery with twofold action: it soothes and heals the inflamed membranes and inhibits germ growth.

Of all known drugs, creosote is recognized by high medical authorities as one of the greatest healing agencies for persistent coughs and colds and other forms of throat troubles. Creomulsion contains, in addition to creosote, other healing elements which soothe and heal the infected membranes and stop the irritation and inflammation, while the creosote goes on to the stomach, is absorbed into the blood, attacks the seat of the trouble and checks the growth of the germs.

Creomulsion is guaranteed satisfactory in the treatment of persistent coughs and colds, bronchial asthma, bronchitis and other forms of respiratory diseases, and is excellent for building up the system after colds or flu. Money refunded if any cough or cold is not relieved after taking according to directions. Ask your druggist.

SCHOOL BEING MADE SAFE FOR PUPILS

Complaints of women of the Lincoln avenue district have caused the Board of Education to take cognizance of the fact that the Lincoln Public School, Lincoln and Frankstown avenues, where 1,100 pupils are enrolled, has become unsafe, and the building is being reinforced with steel columns and girders during the pupils' holiday vacation.

Many mothers of the district have refused to permit their children to attend the school after Miss Maude E. Milholland, principal, a few weeks ago stopped all physical exercises of the pupils and abolished the massed marching of the children from the school, due to the sagging of the school floors and the shaking of the building.

The school, containing 18 rooms, is one of the oldest in the city. It was built in 1868, and outside of some remodeling done two years ago the structure has not been changed. J. F. Haldeman is the general contractor for the repairs which are to be completed so that the children may return to school next Monday morning.

According to Claude Burdick, in charge of the work, the walls of the building were never in danger of collapse, although the floors sagged.

Mrs. Anna Plogstert, of 169 Mayflower street, yesterday declared that the unsafe condition of the school had made her afraid to let her daughter Alberta, 9, attend school. She said that after pupils had studied parts in a Christmas play, the show was called off by Miss Milholland because of uneasiness as to the safety of the building.

Herbert McCorkle, 6522 Winslow street, and Mrs. J. F. Whitehill, of 6524 Winslow street, have refused to permit their children to return to school.

FAIL TO OUST GOVERNOR

OKLAHOMA CITY, Okla., Dec. 29.—(AP.)—While National Guardsmen continued to patrol the state capitol, the Senate today definitely shifted its headquarters to the downtown hotel.

A secret conference, lasting through the night adjourned at dawn, after rumors had spread that the Senate had met as a court of impeachment to suspend Gov. Henry S. Johnston. It was learned later, however, that a quorum was not present.

The meeting resulted from reports that the Governor would not permit the senators to convene today.

Senator Lester Smith, one of those present, said that a majority of the Senate was in the hotel and in readiness to meet immediately should the Governor have declared martial law.

Supporters of the administration also held a conference, lasting into the early morning hours, in the same hotel. Gov. Johnston, George D. Key, chairman of the State Democratic Central Committee, and Judge James R. Armstrong, the Governor's adviser, were present.

CHRISTMAS ORGY KILLS RUSSIANS

MOSCOW, Dec. 29.—(AP.)—Christmas celebrations in Moscow were marked by a greater consumption of alcohol and hooliganism than any holiday since the Soviet revolution.

Thirty deaths in Moscow and 24 in Leningrad besides casualties at other points as not yet fully reported, are stated to have been caused by unusually heavy consumption of vodka and wine. It is estimated that in Leningrad alone 1,850,000 bottles of these liquors were consumed, as well as a million bottles of beer.

Seventeen of the Leningrad victims died from alcohol poisoning and seven froze to death while intoxicated, the Leningrad militia worked overtime during the two days' celebration and arrested 1,175 for hooliganism, while 102 persons were treated in hospitals from knife wounds or other injuries suffered in fights.

MEDITATIONS of a MARRIED WOMAN

by HELEN ROWLAND

WITHOUT LOVE—NOTHING

THERE is only one thing in the world to marry for—and that is LOVE.

Good jobs for women and comfy bachelor flats for men have put the "marriage of convenience" away back in the class with hoop-skirts, petticoats and the dinosaur.

Even those who marry for money are beginning to discover that that is the hardest way on earth to earn it. Love has come into its own, at last.

HELEN ROWLAND

Love is the only thing in the world that makes it possible for two human beings to find any joy in facing the struggles and vicissitudes of life together.

Love is the only thing that enables a woman to put up with a man's grouches and tardiness, overlook his conceit, bear with his idiosyncracies, and listen to his alibis without feeling her nerves snap.

Love is the only thing that enables a man to stand a woman's nerves, endure her smothering, overlook her capriciousness, cater to her vanity, and forgive her weaknesses, without losing his mental balance.

Love is the only thing that will make cooking three meals a day, washing the dishes and counting the laundry a joy, instead of a sentence to hard labor.

Love is the only thing that will keep a man's nose to the grindstone, and at the same time keep him young, bouyant and happy.

Love is the magic veil that enables a woman to see the Prince Charming of her courting days in the odd creature who is growling at the looking glass through a cloud of shaving lather.

Love is the only sorcery that will enable a man to see a halo around the head of a woman who is squinting at the mirror through a veil of cleansing cream as she rubs the mascara off her eyelids.

Love is the only thing that makes it possible for two people to sit opposite each other at the breakfast table every morning, without yearning to drop ground glass in each other's coffee cup.

Love is the theme, the plot and the climax of life—and the refrain that runs all through it from the cradle to the grave. Life, without love, is like playing to an empty house.

Without love—nothing!

FAY-KING

By FAY KING.

IF I never read a sporting page, I would be only too well aware as to which sport is now in season.

I seem to have an especial gift for getting right into the game without knowing it!

I don't mind telling you that curbstone athletics are the bane of my life!

During the baseball, hockey and football seasons, it is safer for me to walk five blocks out of my way to avoid a game that is going on at the next corner than to risk ankling by!

For I invariably find that in selecting a safety zone, I invariably select the most important spot in the game that is going on.

I remember only too well last Summer when I picked a fire plug as a safe retreat from a clamorous baseball game that was going on in my path and found (when I came to) that the fire plug was third base and I was right in the path of the base runners!

Only yesterday I arrived at a certain street to see a curb college eleven in the midst of its annual football practice.

Seeking temporary refuge as I noticed one of the huskies about to kick the football, I found again I had picked the goal during a goal kick!

It wouldn't surprise me any day to turn a corner just in time to stop a right to the jaw that is being perfected by some curb champ.

The only good break I ever had was the time the lookout on a crap game told me to step lively because if the cops came I'd be run down flatter than a paper doll when the gang sprinted!

Home-Keeping Hearts

By BEATRICE FAIRFAX

LOVE of home and love of travel are two conflicting motives which, between them, keep this old world of ours progressing. Fascination of the unknown, back of the urge to travel, impels pioneers to conquer every wilderness. Love of home and family passes the torch of life to each succeeding generation.

Somewhere in your nature these two primitive urges—longing for home and longing for adventurous travel—are hidden. Some day, they may clash. Then there will be a battle royal.

It is wise for every girl and young man to look about a bit and enjoy carefree good times before settling down to the responsibilities of home and marriage. If these play-years include travel, so much the better. Rich girls often find their travel year through a school or college far away from home. Others, less affluent, sometimes plan to teach school or obtain work in a distant city, for the sake of change, travel, possible adventure. The spirit is stronger in most young men than in girls. Usually, however, when Cupid comes along, desire to see the world takes a back seat and the two in love have "but one common thought"—enthusiastic desire to marry and start their own little home.

But this is not always the case. Only last week I had a letter from a young man I shall call Dick, which told of a battle with himself.

Dick, it seems, is in love with the nicest girl in the world. He had intended to marry her if she would have him. Then at the last moment his love of adventure was too strong for him. He enlisted in the army for three years of travel. Now he's very forlorn. He longs for his girl and the home they were planning together.

The vagabond spirit is supposed to be light-hearted. But wanderers are usually lonely. Love of home is perhaps the most primitive instinct. When it fails to find expression in time, restless discontent, melancholy and intense loneliness follow. Heart hunger for home and all that goes with home only becomes more insistent when it is suppressed.

"I'll try the stage a year or two, then come back and marry Jack," reflected Anne. "Jack loves me, so he will wait for me. And I do want to travel."

But alas! When Anne returned, three years later, she found Jack had turned for consolation to another girl, deciding that Anne was too fond of change and excitement ever to settle down happily as his wife.

Travel and a career at the cost of love are about as satisfying as apples of the Dead Sea, which are said to turn to ashes at the slightest touch.

"A rolling stone gathers no moss," runs the old proverb. "But it becomes polished," some modern wit has added.

If it comes to a choice, however, love and home are more important to your happiness than travel and adventure if you are the average girl or young man. For the home-hunger is the deeper.

Marry the finest young man you know while you are still young, while you have strength and courage for hum-drum drudgery, difficult adjustments and monotony, which are as much a part of the great adventure of marriage and homemaking as its joy and peace and achievement.

Make your nest with the man you love. It will be a real home, the sweetest place on earth, if you and he bring all your efficiency and energy, all your sympathy and understanding, to the task of homemaking.

HOW TO KEEP WELL

by Royal S. Copeland M.D.

U.S. Senator From New York

Cleanliness a First-Aid to Longer Life

IT IS a surprising thing that there should be need for a "Cleanliness Institute," with its official organ, "The Cleanliness Journal." But there is such an organization and such a magazine. According to its announcement, the Institute is "a public service organization dedicated to higher standards of cleanliness in personal and community life." It has high aims, determined to emphasize the relation of cleanliness to character, self respect and the higher values of life, as well as to practical questions of health, comfort and efficiency.

DR. COPELAND

It is proposed to aid all other agencies having similar aims. "It will co-operate with schools, with health and social service agencies, and with other organizations whose purposes are related to cleanliness."

These are worthy aims. On the public side they are easy to realize. The police power can be invoked.

But personal cleanliness is another problem. That is a private matter. It is only by education that individuals can be induced to keep clean.

Bathing is a habit. Like all other habits, it must be acquired young. It is a practice which the children should be taught to enjoy.

In the olden days, cleanliness was preached as a matter of personal and public decency. Today it is urged as an important factor in the promotion of the public and private health.

It was the birth and growth of the germ theory of disease that caused the world to demand and practice cleanliness. Invisible dirt is now regarded as more dangerous than material dirt. The microscope has revealed dangers far more menacing than the litter so offensive to sight and smell.

The public officials will deal with all offenses against the public welfare. But what are you doing to enforce cleanliness in your house and to educate your family to the importance of personal cleanliness?

Cleanliness of body, face and hands, fingernails and teeth, tongue and intestinal tract is essential to health, vigor and length of life. Please, note this statement and think about it a minute.

Cleanliness does not relate to looks alone. Of course, the beauty and attractiveness of the individual are promoted by cleanliness. But it is not this aspect of the matter that I have in mind.

Disease is fostered and encouraged by uncleanliness. The uncleaned mouth permits the germs of decay to attack the teeth. Pussy gums or abscessed roots result. Absorption of the pus poisons the system, causing rheumatism and heart disease.

This discussion could be carried on for a week. But common sense teaches the importance of cleanliness. Teach the children the habit and add to the health and usefulness by keeping them clean. Practice cleanliness yourself and help your community to be clean.

Happiness

By LUCY LOWELL

WHAT is happiness? How is it obtained?

There are, of course, many recipes for obtaining happiness; nearly as many as there are people in the world. What means contentment and delight to one may mean misery to another; it's all in the point of view.

I have, however, come upon a new viewpoint set forth a long time ago, and now offer it to those who wish happiness. It was written by Benjamin Franklin:

"Human felicity is produced, not so much by great pieces of good fortune that seldom happen, as by little advantages that occur every day. Thus, if you teach a poor young man to shave himself, and keep his razor in order, you may contribute more to the happiness of his life than in giving him a thousand guineas.

"The money may be soon spent, the regret only remaining of having foolishly consumed it; but in the other case he escapes the foolish vexations of waiting for barbers, and of their sometimes dirty fingers, offensive breaths and dull razors; he shaves when most convenient to him, and enjoys daily the pleasure of its being done with a good instrument."

Why shouldn't this philosophy of happiness be useful in all cases? Since trifles make the sum of life, and it is most often the pin-pricks that make us uncomfortable, why isn't it reasonable to believe that the little advantages of day-to-day living may make us glad?

Anyway, it seems worth giving a trial—looking for happiness in small things.

Perfect health is refreshing

If you are tired—lack pep—if your skin is not clear—if your appetite is "gone"—you owe it to yourself and friends to try S.S.S. Its tonic effects will surprise you.

WHEN your system is filled with rich, red blood, you don't have that tired, languid feeling when you awake in the morning.

Instead, you feel refreshed; ready to meet the world!

Your appetite is keen, you enjoy work or play. Your skin is clear—cheeks naturally rosy.

All this because rich, red blood is Nature's substance for building and sustaining the body.

Thousands have regained their strength and charm by taking a few bottles of S. S. S.—Nature's own tonic for restoring the appetite—building strength—and clearing the body of so-called skin troubles.

You know a clear skin comes from within. Correct the cause—thru the blood—and pimples, boils, eczema and that sallow complexion will disappear.

For more than 100 years S.S.S. has been giving relief in thousands of cases, as testified to in unsolicited letters of gratitude.

"I was troubled with pimples and blackheads, but thanks to S.S.S., I got rid of them. My face now has a smooth feeling. I think S.S.S. does many wonders for the system. Besides giving me a clear complexion, it gave me a healthful look." Miss Angela Annunzio, 1007 S. Racine Ave., Chicago, Ill.

"I was troubled with pimples and blackheads. I took a course of S.S.S. It cleared my face and back. I think S.S.S. is wonderful. I have told many friends about S.S.S., and they are getting as much benefit as I did." Miss Ruth Gahm, 1134 Elden Ave., Los Angeles, Calif.

S.S.S. is a splendid tonic for growing children, too.

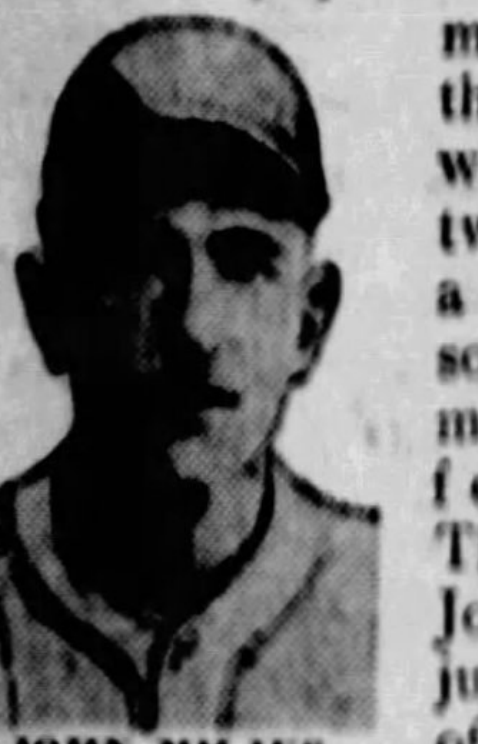
SPORT COMMENT

by JAMES J. LONG

PITTSBURGH has the distinction of being the home and the present baseball station of the only pitcher within the memory of the oldest fans who ever led two leagues in a single season in the matter of effectiveness. That hurler is Johnny Miljus, product of the Lawrenceville sand lots, and now one of the star members of the Pirate hurling staff.



JOHN MILJUS.

The official National League pitching averages show that Johnny made a better record than any other slabman in the Heydler circuit for 1927, allowing an average of only 1.59 earned runs per nine innings.

Miljus is not given first place in the league list on account of his not having pitched 10 complete games, the berth of honor going to Remy Kremer, also of the Buccaneers, who allowed an average of only 2.47 earned runs per nine innings. But that does not alter the fact that Johnny allowed a smaller average of earned runs per game than any other pitcher in the senior major circuit.

AND in addition to the great record he made with the Corsairs after being purchased from Seattle on June 9 for $17,500 and Pitcher Andy House, Miljus also led the Pacific Coast League in effectiveness. The official averages for 1927 in that league show that the Pittsburgher topped the entire list with an average of only 2.36 runs allowed per nine innings.

This showing is the more remarkable when it is considered that all of the cities in the Coast League except Oakland and Los Angeles have small parks, a severe handicap to a pitcher.

Remy Kremer.

Miljus pitched a total of 17 complete games and 179 innings, winning 13 games and losing only five for a percentage of .722, whereas the winning percentage of his club was but .566.

The league leader in percentage was Gould of Oakland, who won 17 and lost 5, but in effectiveness he was far behind Miljus, allowing 3.36 runs per nine innings.

Johnny's lead over the field was a wide one, as the second man in effectiveness allowed 2.83 earned runs per game against the present Pi-

NEW PLAYS GET TEST IN LONG DRILL

By Sun-Telegraph Special Correspondent.

ALBUQUERQUE, N. M., Dec. 29.—Pitt's Golden Panther football squad, invigorated by a snappy workout in the bright sunshine at Dodge City, Kan., yesterday afternoon, was rushed into Albuquerque at an 80-mile-an-hour clip this morning.

The Pitt Pullmans and baggage car were hooked on to a United States mail train early last evening after a seven-hour stop-over in Dodge City and the Golden Panthers headed toward the Colorado state line, 110 miles away, at a dizzy pace.

Coach Sutherland gave his players a long drill on the high school field at Dodge City yesterday. After Assistant Coach Charley Bowser had put the squad through a stiff round of setting-up exercises, Charley Edwards and Jimmy Hagan drew rounds of applause from the big crowd with their 70-yard punts. There was a slight wind boosting their spirals along, but the Panther stars were getting them off long and high.

Capt. Gibby Welch was the center of interest and the all-America star thrilled the rail-birds with a neat exhibition of pass-receiving, snagging a number of seemingly impossible lofts from Booth and Hagan.

The Panthers topped off the drill with a signal practice that called some deceptive reverse plays to the crowd's attention. Sutherland has given his team a number of new formations for the Stanford game and a number of them looked extremely effective.

The Eastern team will spend 19 hours in Albuquerque. A workout on the University of Mexico Athletic Field this afternoon, and several long walks along with a bit of sight-seeing in Albuquerque citizens' automobiles will take up the day there.

CHIEF BENDER

Famous Chippewa Indian and one of the greatest money pitchers of all time. He still retains much of his old skill, having pitched for minor league clubs since dropping out of the big show. He succeeded Babe Adams as manager of Johnstown in the Middle Atlantic League last season and turned in a one-hit game for that club.

BULLET JOE BUSH

Who has done considerable kicking around in baseball since he was released as a member of the Athletics some years ago, and now returns to the House of Mack to end his baseball days. It is said he may be converted into an outfielder because of his hitting ability. Bush was picked up by the Pirates late in the 1926 season and remained with the local club until he was let go last season. He was signed by the New York Giants then and let out after a trial.

KREMER TOPS LEAGUE IN EFFECTIVENESS

By CHARLES J. DOYLE

Remy Kremer, Pirate ace, is the most effective pitcher in the National League over the two-year period ending with last season, according to the official records given out today.

Kremer tops the senior circuit sharpshooters in the 1927 campaign just as he did in 1926. The big Frenchman allowed only 2.47 earned runs per nine-inning game.

Grover Alexander, the patriarch of the mound, and a star of the Redbird flock, was runnerup to Kremer. Kremer's mark was .252.

Larry Benton led the hurlers in percentage of victories and defeats with a mark of .708. Charley Root of the Cubs pitched the most innings, 309. Charley had 26 triumphs for the heaviest total.

Lee Meadows and Jess Haines each twirled 25 complete games, they leading in this connection.

Haines pitched the most shutout victories, 6. Scott lost the most games, 21; allowed the most sacrifice hits, 49; the most runs, 154, and the most earned runs, 132. Meadows allowed the most hits, 315. Peter J. Donohue, Cincinnati, allowed the smallest number of bases on balls, 32.

Vance led the league in strikeouts for the sixth consecutive year with 184 to his credit. During this period Vance has fanned a total of 1,137 batsmen. Frank S. May, Cincinnati, hit the most batsmen, 14, and made the most wild pitches, 8.

Bezdek, Lions' Coach, Becomes U. S. Citizen

BELLEFONTE, Pa., Dec. 29.—Hugo Bezdek, 44, athletic director and football coach at Penn State College, today became a citizen of the United States when he obtained his citizenship papers from Judge James C. Furst, at a special session of Naturalization Court. Bezdek once managed the Pittsburgh Pirates. He was born in Czechoslovakia and came to this country with his parents in 1891.

STATE COLLEGE, Pa., Dec. 29.—Hugo Bezdek, director of athletics at Penn State, left this morning to attend the meeting of football coaches in New York Friday. Bezdek, who is chairman of the association's committee on stabilizing the coaching profession, declared that he had no particular recommendations to place before the meeting.

MUNHALL VISITS RESORT

Bert Munhall, heavyweight trainer of athletes at Carnegie Tech, today is en route to Mineral Springs, Tex., to recuperate from a nervous breakdown suffered about three weeks ago, when he collapsed in an Oakland barber shop. Bert will remain at the health resort until the middle of February. Physicians advised the Tartan conditioner to make the trip to the Southwest when he suffered a relapse recently, after being released from Mercy Hospital.

RICKARD TO RECOVER GRIFFO BURIAL COST

NEW YORK, Dec. 29.—(AP.)—Young Griffo, oldtime lightweight flash, who died here several weeks ago, supposedly a pauper, left an estate of $1,800. Announcement to this effect came from a bank.

Tex Rickard has filed a claim for $783 against the estate for funds the promoter provided for Griffo's burial. The woman who gave the great boxer of other days free lodging for the last few years of his life has claimed the balance.

Griffo, so far as is known, has no relatives.

HOCKEY

THE Pirate hockey players will taper off their preliminary work for Saturday night's game here with Montreal with a stiff workout on the Duquesne Garden ice this afternoon. The first practice since last week's game was staged yesterday, when several of the skaters returned after spending the holidays at their homes in Canada.

No further developments were reported in the trade market by President Townsend, which means that when the Maroons make their initial appearance of the season here the same lineup that defeated Toronto and later tied Les Canadiens will be pitted against them.

HAWKS' CAPTAIN HURT

CHICAGO, Dec. 29.—(AP.)—Capt. Dick Irvin of the Chicago Blackhawks hockey team, whose skull was fractured in last night's game with the Montreal Maroons, was conscious today, but in a serious condition. Only meager reports were given out from the hospital.

The Blackhawks' captain collided with Dutton, Maroon defense man, in the second period. The two players crashed into a side wall, falling on the ice. Dutton arose and skated away, uninjured, but Irvin had to be carried from the floor. Montreal won the game, 4 to 3.

SOLDIER JONES SUSPENDED

PHILADELPHIA, Dec. 29.—Because of a poor exhibition given at Motor Square Garden, Pittsburgh, last Monday, Soldier Jones, heavyweight boxer, has been suspended by the State Athletic Commission.

Frank McDaniels, manager, also was suspended.

COMMITTEE PLANS TO CLARIFY LAWS

NEW YORK, Dec. 29.—(AP.)—The National Football Rules Committee stands pat on the changes made in the gridiron code this year, its chairman, Edward K. Hall, of New York and Dartmouth, disclosed today in making his annual report to the convention of the National Collegiate Athletic Association.

These rule changes, in Hall's opinion, have accomplished most of their purpose, and as a result the committee contemplates no alterations at its annual meeting later in the winter, except possibly to clarify or adjust some of the provisions already in the code.

The conservative stand by the rules committee chairman came today while coaches and football officials from all parts of the country gathered for their annual debates and post-mortems on the gridiron season. It is in contrast with the somewhat critical attitude adopted by numerous coaches, particularly toward this year's rule changes.

RULE MAKERS PLEASED

The changes with which Hall says the rules committee "is much satisfied" included setting back the goal posts 10 yards, removal of the major risks in use of the lateral pass and in catching punts, regulations of the shift with increased penalty for illegal shifts, and control of "unreasonable delays" in the game.

Criticism has been leveled particularly at shifting the goal posts, Hall's report notes, adding, "The argument is advanced that it is more difficult for the spectators to tell whether the play which is near the goal line has resulted in a touchdown.

"The answer is clear. If the inconvenienced spectator can restrain his curiosity for about three to five seconds longer he will be advised in no uncertain terms as to whether the ball is over or not. Furthermore, the rules committee has always acted on the principle that this game was a game primarily for the boys who play it and only incidentally for those who watch it. When the permanent safety of the boys must give way to the momentary convenience of the spectators our ideas as to the true purposes of academic sport will have to come up for drastic and annihilative revision."

DEFENDS POST REMOVAL

In defense of the goal post removal, Hall stresses the fact that it has eliminated the danger of injuries in scrimmages near the uprights. It also, he says, has removed the unfair handicap which exists when a team kicks out from behind its own goal posts, makes it more difficult for a team to capitalize a star kicker's ability and adds to the gamble for the extra point after touchdown.

In his review of rules-making, covering the period of radical restriction of the game from 1906 to 1920 and the era of stabilization and standardization since then, Hall sees COLEMAN R. GRIFFITH, head of the athletic research department of the University of Illinois, has just completed a study of "yellow streaks" as found in college competitive athletics and reports that the so-called "yellowness" is rarely inherited and may be overcome by proper and patient treatment.

"A few men are cowardly by nature," he concludes, "but most men grow cowardly or unaggressive because their youth furnished them no opportunity to learn aggressiveness. The 'yellow streak' may be got rid of by a patient application of one's self to hard tasks."

WELL spoken, Mr. Griffith. Adversity teaches us to fight. Peril causes us to fight back. Any animal or human, no matter how docile by nature, will fight back to survive or when cornered or when danger threatens.

A mother will fight for her young. A man will fight for those he loves or for glory.

There are various manners of fighting. Some must fight with their fists or other weapons, some must carry great burdens without complaining and the latter are no less heroes than the former.

ONLY a game fish can swim upstream. But there are many fish, human and otherwise, who do not believe they can swim against the tide until necessity compels them to make the effort and then, once the grade is made, the fear or lack of confidence is banished forever. In other words, they do not know what they are capable of accomplishing until they are forced to try.

The bully is not a gamester. He may ride roughshod over his fellow men for a long time until one day he picks on an inoffensive victim and the latter, roused to fury, pitches in to defend himself and overcomes the strong-armed creature. Then the cowardice of the bully comes to the fore and the meek one realizes he can take care of himself and never again permits himself to be intimidated.

THE late Theodore Roosevelt long ago gave the world the correct theory of gameness. He was an ardent admirer of boxing and indulged in it himself.

"Teach a boy to defend himself with his fists, Nature's weapons, and he'll never use a knife," the immortal Teddy declared.

NOTES of the BOXERS

RUDY CEDER, the hard-hitting welterweight of Tarentum, who rose from obscurity to main bout fame in the Motor Square ring last season and hasn't boxed in that arena since, will be welcomed back "home" by the fans when he climbs through the ropes to oppose Young Saylor of Charleroi in the semi-final of the all-star card next Monday afternoon. When announcement of the battle was made at the Christmas afternoon show, it drew a big hand from the spectators, attesting to the popularity of the carefree swinger who knocks 'em kicking with one punch.

Willie Davies and Alec Burlie meet in the windup Monday, Teddy Welch and Young Rudy in the second event and Jimmy Belmont and Harry Taylor in the opener. Each bout will be of eight rounds.

Sandy Seifert and Emmett Rocco have been rematched for a 12-round bout at Youngstown Monday afternoon. Rocco was credited with a victory over Sandy at Youngstown a few months ago and they were almost immediately rematched, but Sandy developed an infected finger and the bout had to be set back.

Athletes Have Best Prospect Of Long Life

NEW YORK, Dec. 29.—(AP.)—College athletes have a better prospect of long life than the average man, and this prospect is improving each year, statistics compiled by the Metropolitan Life Insurance Company show.

The statistics, presented by Dr. I. Dublin of the Metropolitan to the annual convention of the American Student Health Association, also showed that of college athletes baseball players have the highest mortality rate and football players the lowest.

THE Duquesne Lafayettes, winners of the Allegheny County League championship last winter, today appeared on their way to their second straight title by defeating the Broadway club of Beechview last night at Duquesne, 36 to 27.

The defeat marked the first the Broadway Club has suffered in the Allegheny County League races so far this season and enabled the winners to take sole possession of first place with four victories without a reverse.

That George Ramsay, former Merry center, has made the Lafayettes a stronger aggregation than they were last year, was easily shown last night when the elongated pivot star came through with seven baskets.

Broadway put up a game, but [illegible]ing battle against the champions.

ANOTHER favorite that came through successfully last night was the Knickerbockers of Lawrenceville, who scored their tenth victory in 11 games at the expense of the Heinz House passers, 38 to 16. The North Siders were expected to put up a strong front against the [illegible] Strippers, but once the [illegible] way they never had a chance.

Webster Hall, boasting a string of eight successive victories, appears to be the only club that stands between the Knickers and the West Penn League title.

THE Geneva College basketball [illegible] of the favorites to win the Tri-State Conference title, will [illegible] appearance of the season in Pittsburgh tonight when it engages the crack Young Men's Hebrew Association quintet on the latter's floor.

Leading the Covenanters tonight will be Moy Rubenstein, a Y. M. H. A. member, who is playing his last year with Geneva. Rubenstein is popular among the members of the Bellefield institution and many of his friends will be out tonight to see him in action against the home favorites.

DRIBBLES

The J. J. Mieles, last year's P. & O. League champions, scored their ninth victory without the loss of a game when they defeated the Succops at the Market House last night, 39 to 36. The Goldensons remained at their heels by vanquishing the St. Richards quintet, 49 to 34.

The Goldensons of the P. & O. League have booked the Felders of Jeannette for a game at the South Side Market House New Year's afternoon.

Tomorrow night the B. L. Succops will meet their sectional rivals, the Goldensons, in a P. & O. League game at the South Side Market House.

The Pittsburgh Railways team of the Philadelphia Company League is open for games abroad with first-class teams. Call Grant 7450 and ask for Homewood Construction Order Department.

Tomorrow night the Heinz House passers will face an old rival, Trinity Church, in a West Penn League battle. The game is scheduled for the Trinity floor.

The Frogs and the Mice defeated the Squirrels and the Bats, respectively, in the opening games of the Smithfield Street German Evangelical Protestant Church League last night. The Mice won, 26 to 22, and the Frogs, 24 to 9.

state of coma, and if ordinary conversational tones fail, the two can combine in some harmony that never fails.

Ollie DeVictor, the Pitt trainer, is trying a new conditioning "wrinkle." Ollie gives each member of the squad a small bottle of grape-juice as a night-cap.

CARDS OFF FOR PASADENA

STANFORD UNIVERSITY, Dec. 29.—(AP.)—Thirty-eight members of the Stanford University football squad will leave tonight for Pasadena to meet the powerful Pittsburgh Panthers in the annual Tournament of Roses game January 2.

The Cardinals depart for the Southland with the knowledge that they will face the team which their coach, Pop Warner, has characterized as the best in the East. But Warner believes that 60 minutes of real football at top speed will give the Stanfordites an even chance for victory, despite their inconsistent play this season.

The strength of the Panther line, which has limited its opponents to three touchdowns this year, probably will cause the Cardinals to resort to the aerial game. With Biff Hoffman tossing the long passes, and either Frankie Wilton or Dick Hyland shooting the short ones, Stanford is well equipped for an overhead game.

While the Cardinals' starting line-up has not been definitely announced, it is generally accepted by critics that the three doubtful positions, left end, quarter and right half, will be filled by Johnny Preston, Mike Murphy and Don Hill, respectively. Preston has a bad knee that may preclude his playing very long, in which event Mush Muller will take his place. Murphy, it appears, has definitely superseded Spud Lewis as field general, while Hill, although closely pressed by Bob Sims, probably will get the call because of his experience and superior defense ability.

The Pittsburgh squad is scheduled to arrive in Pasadena Saturday in time for a short workout that afternoon.

Washington To Be Scene

By JESS CARVER.

WASH-JEFF has placed the matter of a football game with Duquesne University squarely in the hands of the Duke authorities, according to word from Graduate Manager of Athletics W. G. Theuer of W. and J. received by this correspondent last night. Manager Theuer confirmed the story carried in The Sun-Telegraph yesterday, in which it was stated that the game would be played in Little Washington and not in Pittsburgh, and that the announcement of the scheduling of the contest would come from Duquesne and not from Wash-Jeff.

All that the Dukes have to do now to insure their winning a place on the President's schedule for next season is to shift the Bethany game from the October 13 date to another Saturday and arrange to send the gridders to Washington on that day. If the date is accepted by the Dukes, it will be for one year only, and with no understanding for future contests in any branch of athletics between Duquesne and Wash-Jeff teams.

Graduate Manager Holahan of Duquesne, at present attending the series of football meetings in progress in New York, has accepted the terms offered by Wash-Jeff, and it remains for him now to get the sanction of the Duquesne schedule committee and to make arrangements with Bethany for the changing of the Bison-Duke date before making an official announcement of Duquesne's acceptance of the game.

PITT CAGERS READY

Pitt's crack basketball team will follow the same plan of attack that has been used with such success in the games played so far this season against Ohio State Saturday night and try its best to overwhelm the Buckeyes with a fast and furious attack from the first tip-off.

The Panthers are ready right this minute for Ohio State, and the scheduled drills today and tomorrow will only serve to put the five on the finest kind of edge for the very important contest. In fine physical and mental condition, the Pitt team should rise to heights even greater than were scaled on the now famous western trip against Ohio Saturday night. Even the most conservative Pitt followers cannot help but predict a triumph for Doc Carlson's great quintet.

ASK ANDY BACK

Local admirers of Andy Kerr, Wash-Jeff grid and basketball coach were pleased to hear that Andy is to return to the west coast with another all-star college football eleven next fall. Andy, together with Dick Hanley of Northwestern, coached the all-Eastern eleven that was defeated by an all-Western team in the annual Shriner's benefit contest Monday.

Yesterday, according to reports from San Francisco, the Islam Temple committee invited him to bring a team out again next year and Andy accepted.

The bad luck that followed the Duquesne football team and which so far has trailed along in the wake of the basketball squad has come into evidence again. Bill Rosenberg, star guard, bobbed up with an injured knee yesterday, and the outlook is that he will be unable to take his accustomed position in the lineup when the next contest is staged with the Muskingum College outfit on the Bluff next Monday.

Rosenberg is the third of the Duquesne floor players to be lost to the team this season so far. For a time Vernon, center, was crossed from the list of eligible players by illness, and a short time later Reich, captain, suffered an injury to an eye and was sent to the sidelines. Both, however, have recovered and Rosenberg is the only one incapacitated at the present time.

RULES

the game as now established on a well-balanced plane.

Pointing out the aim of this year's changes to strike a fair balance between offense and defense, he says:

"The committee is much gratified with the result of the changes as shown in the game during the season just closed. Never before have we seen better football. As long as we can hold the game essentially as it is today, we will apparently have the finest kind of game—open, clean, fast, interesting, safe and with such a wealth of strategic possibilities that the under dog always has his chance to come back and the defeated team an opportunity to win the following week.

NO CHANGES CONTEMPLATED

"No changes in the rules are contemplated by the committee other than certain minor changes for the purpose of clarifying, adjusting or perfecting provisions already in the rules."

Before the start of the season, Hall's report said, the most serious of the rules-makers' problems was the illegal shift. It has disappeared, he adds, and the danger of any return to momentum plays through its device has been eliminated by the new rule compelling approximately a one-second full stop after a team shifts.

Of the lateral pass rule, designed to strengthen the offense, Hall's report says that it has not been given complete enough trial to determine its value.

"As in the case of the forward pass," the report says, "it undoubtedly will take at least three or four years to develop its real possibilities. There is no question, however, but that to whatever extent the lateral pass is developed as a ground-gaining play, to the same extent it will force a widening of the defense, and thus be of assistance to every feature of the running game."

WEST WANTS VOICE

NEW YORK, Dec. 29.—(INS.)—Leaders of Western football plan to challenge the East's domination of the football rules committee today at the annual meeting of the National Collegiate Athletic Association. The insurgents will propose that the committee be reduced from 12 members to 10, and that the East's influence on the important committee be curbed by the selection of the 10 from different sections of the country.

Although a hot fight is predicted, it is believed that the drastic changes proposed will not be adopted.

Advocates of the plan declare that it will result in a uniform interpretation of football rules, which at present are interpreted differently by officials throughout the country.

rate's 2.36, and at that he pitched only six games.

YOU can go back a long way in the baseball records without finding anything to equal the feat of Miljus in leading two leagues in one year.

How far he surpassed the other pitchers on the Coast may be judged from the comparative record of Wilbur Cooper, former Pirate and Cub, who southpawed for the Oakland club during the 1927 race. Cooper's record for the year was 15 games won and 12 lost for a percentage of .556, and the average of earned runs he allowed was 2.55 per game.

All around it is clear that the come-back of Miljus in 1927 was one of the most sensational in history and that in landing him the Bucs acquired one of the best hurlers in the country.

Wilber Cooper.

The National League pitching records furnish additional evidence in the class of Pittsburgh pitchers, with Kremer, for the second year in succession, leading in effectiveness all the moundsmen who pitched 10 or more complete games, and Miljus leading all who pitched fewer than 10 complete games.

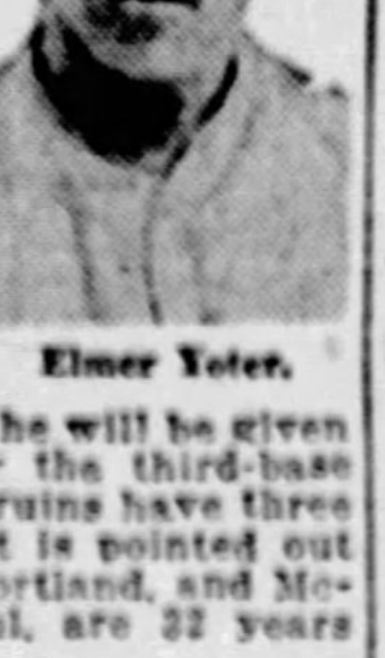
RARELY has any club won the distinction of having the leading two chuckers. It gives an idea as to how greatly the Bucs suffered in not having either Kremer or Miljus available for the full season, and as to how strong the Pittsburgh club was in winning the pennant anyhow.

Note also in the averages that Carmen Hill and Lee Meadows were among the first 12 in effectiveness, and finished ahead of such pitchers as Rixey, Grimes, Sherdel, Carlson, Root, Benton, Donohue and Greenfield.

It shows again that there is no occasion for local fans to worry about the Buccaneer pitching staff for next year.

THE Chicago National League club is doing a big job of house-cleaning this winter. Manager Joe McCarthy is coming close to cracking a record or two in the quantity of material he has traded or shipped back to the minors.

No fewer than 10 players who were on the Chicago roster at the close of the 1927 race are no longer with the Bruins. Apart from Sparky Adams and Pete Scott, who were traded to Pittsburgh for Kiki Cuyler, the Cub management has released Brillheart to Minneapolis, Fick to Milwaukee, Tolson to Los Angeles, and Kelly, Fowler, Rouprich, Wilkie and Kearn to Reading.



Elmer Yoter.

Elmer Yoter, the Pittsburgh boy, has been retained thus far, and his friends here are hopeful that he will be given a further chance for the third-base job, for though the Bruins have three other third sackers it is pointed out that Prothro, from Portland, and McMillan, from St. Paul, are 32 years old. It is conceded, however, that Butler, from Brooklyn, has the inside track for the post.

ANOTHER lesson to young players in baseball, showing that they must take their work seriously in order to extend their years of usefulness on major league fields, is contained in the official confirmation by the Boston National League club that Pitcher Hugh McQuillan has been released to the Newark (N. J.) club of the International League, now managed by Walter Johnson.

McQuillan has just turned the 30-year mark and would have been good for several seasons more in the big show if he had given a greater amount of attention to his baseball duties. He had one of the best fast balls in the big leagues and was a capable pitcher in all mechanical respects.

Hugh McQuillan.

Only five years ago the Giants bought him from Boston for the reported price of $100,000, but things did not run smoothly for him in New York and after suspensions and rebukes he was finally traded back to Boston on June 12 last, along with Kent Greenfield and Eddie Farrell, for Larry Benton, Zack Taylor and Herb Thomas. Now he goes to the minors.

McQuillan, by the way was one of the players offered by Boston to Pittsburgh a month ago in a proposed trade for Cuyler. Manager Bush, of course, refused to consider him.

that frequently appear too severe.

Yet they are getting the proper sort of training. These hard knocks are as nothing compared with what they will encounter when they go forth to battle for their places in the world and the value of the training manifests itself in these later years.

The boy who learns to be game on the athletic field will laugh at the obstacles in the hard, cold business world and will make his mark. He will learn that it is foolish to admit defeat if he gets off behind and that if he sticks to his task the tide will turn sooner or later and he will have a good chance of catching up with his goal and passing it.

AS Soldier Jones groveled in the resin and was ignominiously counted out during the first minute of his fight with George Godfrey at Motor Square Garden last Monday afternoon a ringside spectator behind me yelled blatantly:

"Get up, you yellow dog! You're quitting!"

Jones, perfectly conscious, knew he was quitting, and he ignored the accusation.

Can you imagine any young college athlete giving up the ghost so easily when he had a chance to gain fame and other rewards by making a sincere effort to win?

And yet, was Jones any more "yellow" than the spectator who hid in the crowd, protected by his anonymity, and called him a "yellow dog?"

WOULD that spectator have gone up to Jones, man to man and face to face, and called him that? He would not. It required no courage for him to brand Jones with the saffron tint under the circumstances. But suppose Jones had got up and climbed down out of the ring and declared:

"Maybe I'm afraid of Godfrey, who outweighs me by 55½ pounds and is a better fighter than I am, BUT I CAN LICK THE MAN WHO CALLED ME A YELLOW DOG!"

Would that man have stood his ground or taken it on the run? You have two guesses.

COURAGE is only comparative at best. And the bimbo who yells out of the crowd at the man who is flinching in the face of fire rarely is one who could do as well if given the opportunity.

And there is nothing like competition, whether it is in athletics, the fight to survive in the world or the game of war, to bring out the best—and the worst—in any of us.

BIG BOUTS FOR SHARKEY

NEW YORK, Dec. 29.—(INS.)—Promoter Tex Rickard now plans to sign Jack Sharkey, Boston heavyweight, for three big bouts next season. If Sharkey beats Tom Heeney January 13, he will be matched with either Jack Delaney or Johnny Risko. If he wins that fight, he will be sent against Jack Dempsey for the right to meet Gene Tunney, according to Rickard. If the Boston bruiser is eliminated, however, all bets will be off.

TENNIS

pion; C. Alphonson Smith, University of Virginia; Frank X. Shields, Columbia Grammar School, New York, and Edward Jacobs, University of Pittsburgh.

Smith was the only one of the quartet forced to an extra set match to gain the semi-finals, defeating Eugene McCauliff, Fordham University, by scores of 4-6, 6-3, 6-4. Shields was also hard pressed, however, to put out Gabriel Levine, University of Pennsylvania, in two deuce sets, 7-5, 7-5.

Seligson disposed of Sydney Smith, Amherst, 6-1, 6-1, while Jacobs won from Walter Thomas, Princeton, 6-2, 6-1.

The last of the seeded players in the boys' national indoor title tennis play passed out of the competition when Frank Martin of Bloomfield, N. J., ranked No. 3, fell before the clever stroking of Peter Cay of Williston Academy, Mass., 6-0, 6-2.

William Jacobs, representing Baltimore City College, who is unseeded through an oversight, although defending his championship, easily swept through the third round, defeating George Harris of New York, 6-2, 6-1.

GEHRIG

Barrow, secretary, who does the work of signing the athletes for Col. Jake Ruppert.

According to gossip along the Roarin' Forties, Gehrig has been offered a contract for the 1928 season, but refused to accept the terms.

Gehrig received $8,000 last season and his increase for the coming campaign was not as large as he expected. It is said that Lou has demanded $20,000 to $25,000, and that unless he receives an amount such as he demands, he will not sign.

Barrow was still out of town yesterday and could not be reached for a statement about this report. Barrow will return today from a vacation in Canada.

The recent attempt of the Yankees to secure George Burns, the first sacker, from the Cleveland Indians, is believed to have been the first move in the club's campaign to fortify its position at the initial station in case Gehrig refuses to put his John Hancock to a Ruppert document.

Gehrig, on his exhibition tour of the west with Babe Ruth discovered that he was quite popular and he believes that he should cash in immediately on this popularity and particularly on his work during the past season.

NEW YORK BOND MARKET

NEW YORK, Dec. 29.—(AP.)—Fractional irregularity continued to characterize the bond market today. Trading was in relatively limited volume, as if traders were holding up commitments pending developments. Belief that the easy money situation will carry over well into the new year was instrumental in checking offerings, and bonds which were for sale were well taken, with only slight recessions here and there.

Trading in the railway list was of a desultory character. Such issues as Missouri Pacific 5s, Southern Pacific 4s and Chicago Great Western 4s changed hands in moderately large amounts close to yesterday's final figures. Slightly easing tendencies were noted elsewhere in this group.

Convertible industrials, which have been supplying the market its main interest in the past week or two, turned quiet. Liquid Carbonic 6s were firm, but failed to reach their high level of yesterday. Interborough 5s softened, but there was little change in any other utility issues.

Italian bonds displayed a firm tone, and there was nominal buying of French issues. The foreign division as a whole, however, was dull. United States government obligations attracted little notice.

NEW YORK, Dec. 29.—(AP.)—Transactions in the most active bonds on the New York Stock Exchange today were as follows, 000 omitted in sales column (United States bonds in dollars and thirty-seconds of dollars):

NEWS AND VIEWS

Equipments Strong.

Equipment shares displayed noticeable group strength the greater part of the session, responding to trade reports that business the coming year will show a heavy increase over that of 1927. This year has been a lean one for car and engine builders, but most of the leading companies are well fortified financially and it is not expected the dividend lists will be adjusted to any great extent, if at all. The buying in the equipment today was well distributed among the various issues and was of a confident character. One item contributing to the up movement was an announcement that Lima Locomotive had taken an order for 15 engines from the Texas Pacific.

Car Loadings Decrease.

Car loadings for the week ended December 17 totaled 868,102 cars, a decrease of 9,435 cars from the preceding week and 76,234 under the same week in 1926. Loadings for 1927 up to and including this week were 1,392,014 cars less than last year, amounting to 50,946,044 cars, compared with 52,338,058 cars during the corresponding period in 1926.

Seminole Output Lower.

The Seminole area for the 24 hours ended at 7 a. m. Wednesday produced 362,058 barrels of crude oil, against 364,057 barrels on Tuesday.

Bank of France Cuts Rate.

The Bank of France has reduced its rate of discount to 4 per cent from 5 per cent.

Northern Ohio Power.

Northern Ohio Power Company reports for 12 months ended September 30 consolidated net income of $1,397,518 after fixed charges, but before retirement reserve, equal to $2.90 a share, against $774,963, or $1.55 a share, in the preceding 12 months.

Atlantic Gulf and West Indies.

Atlantic, Gulf and West Indies Steamship Lines and subsidiaries report October net income of $278,466 after depreciation, taxes and charges against net income of $220,021 in October, 1926. Net income for first 10 months of 1927 amounted to $430,312 after above charges, compared with net income of $533,449 in same period of previous year.

Frisco Wants Cars.

St. Louis-San Francisco Railroad is inquiring for 500 flat cars, 500 auto cars, 1,500 hopper cars and 1,500 box cars.

Gillette Safety Razor.

The year 1927 will be seventeenth successive year in which the Gillette Safety Razor Company has increased its net profits over the preceding period. It is believed net profits available for stock will run between $14,000,000 and $15,000,000, or over $7 a share on the 2,000,000 shares of no-par against $13,311,412, or $6.65 a share in 1926. As cash dividends for 1927 totaled $10,000,000 there should be $4,000,000 or more to carry to surplus.

Midland Steel Products.

Commenting on the earning power of the new brake developed by Midland Steel Products Company, E. J. Kulas, president, said: "In these days of keen competition a manufacturer is forced to cut production costs to the minimum and to sell his product on a very narrow margin of profit. We therefore are not expecting the new brake to be a gold mine. As it will take considerable money to develop this product I see no chance for an increase in the dividend over what we are now paying, although our cash position is excellent. I believe our earnings for the year will about equal or be slightly lower than those of a year ago."

Industrial Issues Quiet, Narrow

There were signs of renewed activity in Arkansas Gas in the early session on the Pittsburgh Stock Exchange today, but the price trend was downward. There was considerable stock in the market for disposal at figures a little under last night's close, but aside from the fractional drop in the first half of the session no unusual fluctuations occurred.

Officials of the Arkansas company and Cities Service interests have been in conference here this week looking to a transfer of part of the Arkansas properties to the latter, presumably to Empire Gas and Fuel Company, the big southwest subsidiary of Cities Service. No official word had come from the meetings up to noon today and there was considerable speculation in the Street as to whether the negotiations would be consummated successfully, especially in view of the fact that a representative of the Insull interests (Middle West Utilities) had stated several days ago that a pending deal involving some of their holdings and the Cities Service organization might fall through. It was assumed that this transaction was the one in which Arkansas would figure also.

Price movements in the miscellaneous industrial and manufacturing issues were narrow with the market showing to no disposition to break out of the holiday quiet which has prevailed most of the week. Standard Sanitary was down a small fraction and there were slight recessions in other directions, but in no case was there any noticeable volume of trading. United Engineering was firm and Fireproofing preferred seemed to have struck a temporary resting place around 18, the price to which it sank following the passing of the dividend last week.

COTTON MARKET

NEW YORK, Dec. 29.—(AP.)—The cotton market opened steady today at an advance of 3 points on January, but unchanged to 4 points lower on later deliveries under further preholiday realizing or liquidation and a little Southern selling.

Prices worked off to 19.51c for March and 19.58c for July in early trading or about 5 or 6 points below yesterday's closing quotations, but the trade bought moderately at the decline, while offerings were comparatively light. The tone was fairly steady at the end of the first hour.

Liverpool was relatively steady early, but eased off after the local opening. Private cables reported local buying there and fair trade calling with trading restricted. Good inquiry for cotton cloths was reported from India in the Manchester market, but many offers were said to be unworkable.

Commission house realizing or liquidation continued, the market working off to 19.46c for March and 19.53c for July, or about 10 to 12 points below yesterday's closing quotations. Trade buying continued in small volume on a scale down, accompanied by reports of continued steadiness in the southern spot markets, but otherwise there appeared to be very little demand, and the market was within a point or two of the lowest at midday with business quiet.

Farm Loan Scandals Bad; Coolidge Merits Support.

By B. C. FORBES

LENDING of money to farmers has been so badly bungled and so poorly supervised by the government's farm loan board that bankers who sponsored some of the bonds issued are alarmed. Bank after bank organized under the Federal government's sponsorship has fallen into serious trouble, very heavy losses have been sustained, gross mismanagement has been revealed and jail sentences have been found necessary.

All this notwithstanding that the Farm Loan Board was supposed to be watching everything with an eagle eye and exercising firm control!

The whole mess, it is feared, has not yet been exposed.

PRESIDENT COOLIDGE recognized months ago that scandalous conditions had been allowed to develop. Resignations from the board followed, and three new members received recess appointments. Eugene Meyer, Jr., who had rendered invaluable service as head of the War Finance Corporation, was named by the President as farm loan commissioner, while George R. Cooksey of Washington, D. C., and Floyd R. Harrison of Virginia, who were also directors of the War Finance Corporation, were nominated as members.

But opposition to their confirmation is being raised by Senator Fletcher of Florida and some others on the ground that these men are not "farmer-minded."

The facts make all too plain that the Farm Loan Board members, who permitted the ugly conditions to arise were much too "farmer-minded," and not nearly enough financially-minded, and that President Coolidge was thoroughly justified in demanding a housecleaning.

JUST what has occurred in the way of mismanagement? Rather, how much has thus far [illegible]en revealed?

[illegible]re the three new members [illegible]ed to the Farm Loan [illegible] of the joint stock land [illegible] Kansas City went into the [illegible] of a receiver, and over $40,000,[illegible] of bonds, the issuance of which was supposedly supervised by presiding boards, are in default—a very serious matter.

That receivership was followed by a receivership and default in Milwaukee of the bankers' joint stock land bank.

A little later another receivership became necessary in the case of a comparatively small bank in another territory.

INDICTMENTS have been pending and will come to trial in the early spring in connection with the mismanagement of the Kansas City bank. In Minnesota indictments have already been issued against some of the people previously connected with an important joint stock land bank and a conviction by a jury, on which sat nine farmers, was followed by a sentence of nine years' imprisonment and a fine of $11,000.

NOW, there is no adequate reason for lack of confidence in our Federal land bank system where the institutions are properly administered. That the system is fundamentally sound has been proved by the number of land banks and joint stock land banks which have not suffered any unusual trouble despite the serious ups and downs of agriculture since the war. In fact, in the very territory where receivers have occurred there are joint stock land banks or Federal land banks operating without any abnormal number of foreclosures.

HERE, as in every line of business activity, management is the vital factor. It was sound, honest management, exercised by high-class personnel, that the Farm Loan Board was created by Congress to insist upon. But the board, it has been painfully demonstrated, sadly disappointed its creators.

WHY any opposition to President Coolidge's nominees should come from any sincere well-wishers to our farmers is not easily understood, for the War Finance Corporation, of which these nominees were members, met extraordinary difficult situations with extraordinary success. The corporation utilized its $500,000,000 capital originally supplied by the Treasury to help out cattle and sheep raisers; to finance co-operative organizations for the orderly marketing of cotton, wheat, rice, dried fruits, tobacco, etc.; to finance exports of cotton; to enable farmers to buy feed for cattle when corn was depressed to about twenty cents a bushel; to make loans to almost 700 banks in North Dakota; to take care of thousands of farmers threatened with loss of their farms, etc., etc.

Yet, all this was achieved without any material loss. Indeed, the latest annual report, signed by Secretary Mellon as chairman of the board, and by Eugene Meyer, managing director, states that the government will not only get all this capital back but a return equal to the cost of the money.

THE War Finance Corporation managers proved themselves both "farmer-minded" and also financially-minded. And that is exactly the combination now urgently needed for the Farm Loan Board if fresh scandals are to be averted and the system saved from disaster.

SUGAR MARKET.

NEW YORK, Dec. 29.—(AP.)—The raw sugar market was firmer early today, but no sales were reported and prices were unchanged at 4.52c for Cubas, duty paid.

The raw sugar futures market opened 1 point lower to 1 point higher. Circulation of 100 January notices caused some selling of the near months. Houses with European connections were also on the selling side, probably on account of the small increase in the European beet sugar crop. Offerings, however, were readily absorbed by shorts and trade interests, and prices rallied later, at midday showing net gains of 1 to 3 points. A prominent European crop authority estimated the beet sugar crop of Europe at 8,128,000 metric tons, against his previous estimate of 8,050,000 and last year's outturn of 6,925,000.

The refined sugar market was firm and unchanged at 5.70c to 5.80c for fine granulated, with a fair inquiry reported.

SHARES RECOVER AFTER EARLY DEPRESSION

NEW YORK, Dec. 29.—(AP.)—Heavy buying of the railroad equipment shares, based on reports of large locomotive and freight car orders, featured the mixed price movement in today's stock market. Resumption of selling pressure at the opening carried many issues down 1 to 5 points, but the market turned upward in the early afternoon under the leadership of U. S. Steel common and General Motors, which quickly advanced 2 and 1 point, respectively, above yesterday's final quotations.

Early selling was particularly effective against the Eastern coalers, which have suffered the loss of business as a result of the unseasonably warm weather. Lackawanna broke nearly 5 points, despite the declaration of an extra dividend of $1, and several others yielded a point or two.

National Lead broke 6 points, Continental Insurance (old) 4 and Kelly-Springfield, Commercial Solvents, Savage Arms and DuPont yielded 2 points or more.

Pools continued active in anticipation of a heavy January reinvestment demand. New 1927 peak prices were established by about a score issues including Brooklyn Edison, Brooklyn Union Gas, Consolidated Gas, Collins & Aikman, Outlet Co., Mexican Petroleum and American International.

Baldwin Locomotive extended its early gain to 6½ points and American Locomotive and American Car and Foundry advanced 2 points or more. Wide fluctuations continued in Midland Steel Products preferred, which soared 11½ points and then lost all its gain in the first three hours of trading.

NEW YORK CURB MARKET

NEW YORK, Dec. 29.—(AP.)—Business on the curb exchange today continued in large volume with a long list of stocks again active. Market movements, however, were without special feature, accumulation continuing in some issues while others were under pressure, chiefly on account of profit-taking sales. A number of issues, as usual, were established at new peak prices, but in most cases the high records were registered by issues that are not prominent in security dealings.

Sheaffer Pen on trading on less than 100 shares in all, dropped from 761 to 730 and then rallied to 748. U. S. Gypsum gained 3 points to 90 and Alabama Great Southern rose about 3 points to 159¾. St. Paul preferred was in continued supply yielding a point to 42. Elliott Fisher entered new high ground on an advance of 2 points and American Cigar rose 3 points. Borden also moved up about 3 points.

Ford Motor of Canada dropped 5 points to 570. Insurance Co. of North America yielded 2 points and Maryland Casualty dropped 3 points to 190. American Rolling Mills, which was ex-dividend of ½, rose 3 points to 106, a new high record. Foundation Foreign moved up over a point to 10½.

Movements in the utilities were narrow. American Gas and Electric dropped about a point and Electric Investors advanced a point. Electric Bond and Share was in supply on a moderate scale and yielded a point in the early trading.

There were wide movements in some of the oil stocks. Continental Oil was the feature in the miscellaneous group, selling at a new high for recent trading. Standard Oil of Kentucky rose over 5 points to 129¼ and Gulf Oil was in renewed demand, advancing 3 points to 116¾. Vacuum yielded about a point.

BUGS BAER Says

THERE WAS NO MELODY IN HARMONY AT JACK'S

WE MUST tangle up with the newspapers that claim no music allowed in "Jack's" famous restaurant.

There was one musician who played in "Jack's" every night. We don't mean Ben de Casseres, who was thrown out on his chin seven times a week. Ben loved to sing when loaded down with a formula of bacon, bear and eggs, equally scrambled.

De Casseres had a voice like an ant barking in a horse collar. But once he got his cargo aboard, he would leave the safe harbor of prose and sail out on the unknown seas of melody.

ARTHUR "BUGS" BAER

When "Jack" heard that telescoped baritone scratching the ceiling he would march out and stand in back of De Casseres. A waiter would come up from the front and "Jack" would shake his head sadly and say: "Don't hit him, Tim, I knew his father."

If "Jack" only said, "Don't hit him, Tim," there would be no action. Ben would be allowed to stay the rest of the evening. But when "Jack" added, "I knew his father," it was the office for the waiter to lowbridge the stew-bum and aim him for the street.

Those words, "I knew his father," steered many a hokey, who would go for a merry toboggan across the pavement to wind up in the motherly clasp of an armless fire-plug.

The only musician in "Jack's" was Hype Igoe. Hype played a wicked ukulele for the benefit of Tad and Damon Runyon. Tad loved good music. But that didn't stop him from admiring Hype's efforts to make one G string do the work of the whole alphabet.

"Jack" hated that ukulele but could never locate it. When "Jack" rushed in Hype would slip the uke to a waiter, who would hide it in the ice box. The uke was on the ice for 10 years. But it sounded just as good frozen as it did when thawed out.

The favorite hiding place for the uke was under a big halibut. When Hype sang, "Where the Silvery Colorado Wends Its way," smothered in an aroma of oysters and late, lamented fish, you knew right well it must have been the Colorado.

That uke played hide-and-seek with "Jack" until "Jack's" finally closed. There was no other music that we know of with the possible exception of the tolling of the bell of the cash register.

The reason why "Jack's became an all-night place was contributed by sports writers, who would go there to eat and drink without visible means of support. The only way to stall off the check was to keep on eating and drinking all night.

Only one quartet ever sang in "Jack's." It was composed of Jack Francis, Eddie Curley, Frank O'Malley and Wilson Mizner.

Its success was so instantaneous that each member started an independent tour of the world five seconds after the first chord had been overheard by "Jack's" flying wedge of strong-arm waiters.

"You Said It, Marceline!"

ON "THE MIRROR OF LOVE"

LOVE is all kinds of things
To all KINDS of people,
It depends on the DEPTH of One's imagination,
Some people say
Love is just a GAMBOL—a Frolic on a Summer's
DAY. Others, having more Experience, say LOVE is Tinged with SADNESS; they See it like a WANING
Afternoon in the FALL,
To others, it seems,
Love is a MIDNIGHT feast
With bright LIGHTS, wine and LAUGHTER. And it may be
ALL of these things, for Love is a MIRROR that
Reflects the HEARTS of men,
People seek what they DESIRE
Most, and WHAT they are Looking for, generally,
They FIND. Passion is a Noisy child clamoring for ATTENTION, but LOVE sits
Quietly, for the HEART that Knows true love is like a
SANCTUARY, with candles
Quietly BURNING,
Where all the HOPES that Daily flicker out come BACK
To be kindled ANEW.

"Most Conclusive Evidence of Mexican Intrigue"—Coolidge

The best proof of need for a thoroughgoing investigation by the Senate of the Mexican government's attitude toward the United States, is to be found in a study of long continued conditions that have led up to the present state of affairs.

In the background of present conditions is a long story of Mexican hostility and intrigue. It goes back well nigh a century; a century replete with incidents that often threatened peace, and once caused war. Within the last fifteen years the menace of war has been repeated and persistent. The Pershing expedition into Mexico in 1915, and the American seizure of Vera Cruz in that same period, are merely illustrations.

Along the border between the two countries there have been eruptions and incursions of Mexican bandits against American communities, which, times almost without number, have violated American sovereignty, destroyed American property, and cost great numbers of American lives.

These anti-American activities on the northern border of Mexico could commonly be charged against brigands, though repeatedly it has been apparent that the Mexican authorities were little concerned to prevent such demonstrations. The American government and people have been amazingly patient and restrained.

But on the southern border of Mexico, where Central America is its next door neighbor, the Mexican government itself has constantly stirred up trouble, encouraged revolutions, divided the little republics into factions, and generally promoted anarchy in the aim to justify Mexican intervention. These things have gone on ever since Mexico and the Central American countries were emancipated from Spanish rule. The rulers of Mexico have regarded Central America as an appropriate field for imperialistic design. Their purpose has been to establish Mexican dominance, if not absolutely to annex these countries.

Because of these conditions the United States was compelled to assume the delicate role of a quasi-protector over Central America. Such a relationship was bound to excite jealousies and suspicion and further to divide the Central American peoples into factions; yet it was forced upon the United States by Mexico's attitude.

Passing over earlier instances, the United States in 1912 was compelled to intervene in Nicaragua to suppress disorder, and from then until 1925 maintained at Managua a legation guard of Marines to protect American life and property. Ultimately Senor Adolfo Diaz assumed the Nicaraguan presidency, pursuant to designation by that country's Congress. Immediately after taking office Diaz complained to the United States of the hostile actions of Mexico, and asked American assistance. So serious was the situation that President Coolidge on January 10, 1927, in a special message communicated to Congress a detailed history of these transactions. He quoted approvingly the statement of the Nicaraguan President as follows:

"Upon assuming the Presidency I found the republic in a very difficult situation because of the attitude, assumed without motive by the government of Mexico, in open hostility to Nicaragua. It must be clear to you that, given the forces which that government disposes of, its elements of attack are irresistible for this feeble and small nation. This condition places in imminent risk the sovereignty and independence of Nicaragua, and, consequently, the continental equilibrium on which the Pan-Americanism is founded which the United States has fostered with such lofty spirit.

"For these reasons * * * * I address myself to you in order that, * * * * you may solicit for my government and in my name the support of the Department of State in order to reach a solution in the present crisis and avoid further hostilities and invasions on the part of the government of Mexico."

After quoting the above and much more, President Coolidge proceeded:

"Immediately following the inauguration of President Diaz and frequently since that date he has appealed to the United States for support, has informed this government of the aid which Mexico is giving to the revolutionists, and has stated that he is not able solely because of the aid given by Mexico to the revolutionists to protect the lives and property of American and other foreigners."

President Coolidge said he had ordered an embargo on the shipment of arms and ammunition to Nicaragua and suggested to Mexico it also impose an embargo; but Mexico refused. The President continued:

"As a matter of fact, I have the most conclusive evidence that arms and munitions in large quantities have been on several occasions since August, 1926, shipped to the revolutionists in Nicaragua.

"Boats carrying these munitions have been fitted out in Mexican ports, and some of the munitions bear evidence of having belonged to the Mexican government.

"It also appears that the ships were fitted out with the full knowledge of, and in some cases, with the encouragement of Mexican officials and were in one instance, at least, commanded by a Mexican naval reserve officer."

After describing at length the machinations of Mexico and the consequent disastrous situation in Nicaragua, President Coolidge noted that various foreign governments had appealed to the United States for protection of their interests and nationals in Nicaragua. He called attention to the large number of Americans and extensive American investments in Nicaragua; and finally he reminded Congress that in 1914 Nicaragua by treaty granted to the United States exclusive right to construct a canal across Nicaragua. For these rights the United States paid Nicaragua $3,000,000.

These rights are imminently menaced by the whole policy and procedure of Mexico throughout Central America. They are vitally important to the United States. In a not distant future it is likely to be necessary to build this Nicaraguan canal. The persistent intrigues and interpositions of Mexico, seeking to destroy American rights and Central America's sovereignty, constitute a policy of definite hostility toward the United States.

The American people are entitled to full knowledge of such a menace, persistent for many years, more serious now than ever before. The whole subject having been opened, it is the duty of the Senate to go to its bottom.

The Hearst Papers Advocate:

1. An agreement of English-speaking peoples to preserve peace among themselves and to promote the peace of the world.
2. Proportional representation in the United States Senate, no state to have less than two Senators. Legislation to enforce prompt constitutional reapportionment in the House of Representatives.
3. A separate Department of the Army, of the Navy and of the Air Forces, all united under a Secretary of National Defense.
4. Federal action to the limit of Federal powers to abolish illiteracy in the United States under a Secretary of Education.
5. Election of Congress in November. Installation on the 1st of January following. Inauguration of the President 1st of January next after November election.

Moral Aspect of Wage System

By DR. FRANK CRANE.

USUALLY the money-making individual gets a very black eye from most highbrow writers. They think if a man does a thing in order to get money he should be somewhat ashamed of it.

I wish to say a good word for the desire to make money. It seems to me it is about the most wholesome desire in the human bosom.

What would we do unless people could make money? The gas we burn in the house would remain in the ground if there were no profits in taking it out and piping it to the residence.

You could not have electricity unless it paid somebody to bring it to your house.

You would have to do without most of the food you eat and the clothes you wear if nobody could make a profit by supplying you with them.

We should be very glad to give these middlemen something for their brains. Without their services life would be barren indeed.

Giving people wages or pay is the way we induce people to do something for us which we cannot do or do not want to do ourselves.

Formerly we had a system of slavery by which man did what he didn't want to do.

The conscience of the world rebelled against that, and now to get a man to do for us what we do not want to do ourselves, or cannot do, we simply pay him. Without this system of paying people for their labor there would be none of it done for us.

The wage system beautifies our lives, fills it with comforts and luxuries and the whole fabric of society rests upon it.

Every man or woman should not only be busy but should be busy about something that the world is willing to pay for.

When somebody pays for what you do, you may be sure your work is needed. If you are just working for nothing, you may be more of a nuisance than a benefit.

The wage system is a test by which you know that your work is appreciated.

No man should be ashamed of getting wages. Everybody of any account works for a wage in one form or another.

Of course he should do nothing dishonorable or disgraceful, but he should not do that, anyhow. So, eliminating all wicked or criminal or selfish acts, the best way to test the usefulness of your activities is to see whether anybody wants to pay for them or not.

New York Day by Day

by O. O. McINTYRE

NEW YORK, Dec. 29.—The annoying claque continues its noisy nuisance at the Metropolitan opera. At the slightest signal from their leader they burst into horny handed applause. No other dignified institution permits such a cheap and vulgar sop to vanity.

Members of the claque are sprinkled all over the auditorium and are paid so much a night. It is a thoroughly organized business. The greatest operatic stars employ the claque, a certain indication they are not sure of themselves.

Theatrical first nights often have unusual outbursts of prolonged handclapping, but this generally comes from friends of the players or those with a financial interest in the production. They do not receive money for their services.

The Metropolitan has never made a determined effort to squelch the John Ironhands. It has professed displeasure once in awhile but the truth is it fears to deprive artists of their desire for such obvious self-glorification.

The claque is composed largely of foreigners who have a knowledge and love of fine music. It offers not only the opportunity to satisfy hunger for opera, but to receive pay therefor. They are usually paid off nightly after the performance.

At the opening of the opera this season the claque broke out in a noisy demonstration at the entrance of a singer in one of the star roles. A loud voice in Italian reverberated over the house: "Not now, you fools, wait until the exit."

Even such a great artist as Caruso did not spurn this truckling applause. Yet it means nothing in establishing a performer. One singer who got his Metropolitan chance spent $5,000 for his opening night claque, but lasted only a half season. The claque takes the edge off sincere applause.

In an exclusive restaurant private dining room where a wigged butler announces arriving guests at the doorway there came a certain cigarette king whose name was somewhat like Staccopopoliski. The butler inclined his ear, heard it, made an obsequious bow and very appropriately sneezed.

Only the rich can give big parties at these select haunts. A dinner for 50 is figured at $10 a plate. Cocktails, champagne and other liquor refreshments total another $500. The rental of a private dining room with lounge and dancing floor is around $300. Table decorations about $200. A competent dance orchestra $200 and tips the same amount. A total of $1,900.

The laxity in prohibition observation is chiefly noted in smart cafes not connected with hotels. Property values in hotels are too large to hazard risk in padlocking, but many of the smartest cafes are now taking a chance selling wines. For several years they went no further than to serve liquors brought in by their patrons. Now a few sell openly to those who are known to be "right." It is their argument that so many of their competitors sell liquor that unless they do they go into bankruptcy.

"I've been working hard all day," he said.

"Yeah," replied a guest. "How were all the boys on the dump?"

Garrett P Serviss Says:

Life of Suns and Worlds

"In writing of nebulae you said that recent discoveries in the structure and transformations of atoms have set scientific speculation into new channels in the search for consistent theories of cosmogony. Will you kindly tell what are these recent discoveries and how they have changed scientific opinion regarding the nebular hypothesis?—F. M."

THE nebular hypothesis assumed that the solar system was formed through the contraction of a great nebulous mass, the major part of which shrank into the sun, while the planets were formed from rings left off at the periphery of the rotating mass during its contraction. Supplementing this was the theory accounting for the sun's continued radiation of energy in the form of heat. This theory assumed that the gravitational falling of the solar matter toward the center of the sun as the latter went on slowly shrinking sufficed to maintain the radiation through operation of the law of the mechanical equivalent of heat. It was calculated that if the present radius of the sun shrank only 200 feet per year the needed energy would be supplied in this way for at least twenty or thirty million years.

The first blow to the nebular hypothesis was dealt by the demonstration that it was mathematically inconsistent in its details with the law of angular momentum. At the same time the supplementary theory based on the thermal effects arising from the continued shrinking of the sun, suffered a still more convincing check when the new discoveries about the constitution of atoms led to a vast extension of the probable lifetime of the sun and other stars as sources of radiant energy.

The present view is that the radiant energy of suns comes from the liberation of energy locked up in the atoms, and that the lifetime of a sun may be hundreds or thousands of millions of years. However, not enough is yet positively known about the internal economy of atoms to furnish a complete theory on this subject. Such theory involves the inference that matter and energy are fundamentally identical, or are transformable one into the other.

If that be so, then a sun may be gradually radiating away its substance by continuing to furnish light and heat to its surroundings. On this hypothesis the English astronomer Eddington has calculated that the sun is losing 130 million-million tons of its mass per year, and that it might go on dissipating itself away at that rate for 15 million-million years! At the end of that time, by the supposition, there would be nothing left where the sun had been—not even the ghost of an atom! But these are confessedly calculations based on hypotheses only.

A less extravagant-seeming suggestion is that in Russell-Dugan-Stewart's "Astronomy," to the effect that a single star might go through almost every known spectral type, starting as a very massive red "super-giant" passing through various stages to the main sequence of Class B, and finally contracting to the density and temperature of a "white dwarf."

"The sun on this view," say the authors, "may once have been as massive, bright and hot as Sirius, and still earlier may have been a giant such as Capella; and in the remote future it may shrink to be a faint red dwarf like Kruger 60, and it may end as a white dwarf like Van Maanen's star."

Whatever may eventually be the form taken by cosmogonical theory, and however many changes it may yet have to undergo, evidently we shall never get back to the simple nebular hypothesis which seemed for so long to furnish an easy explanation of all celestial puzzles. Astronomy, like her old consort, Navigation, has reached the flying stage, and breathless indeed are some of the flights she undertakes.

Once Overs

Try Again

ARE you satisfied with having achieved a few successes?

You are capable of doing still greater things but because you think you might fail in one or more of them you don't try any more.

You prefer to stand on past glories rather than take a chance of losing the reputation you have won.

Are you not too easily satisfied with minor accomplishments?

You look about you and see others who have not done as well as you have, and you think you have done pretty well.

What you have made has met financial requirements, because you have kept your desires within bounds, and life is easy for you.

You prefer this easy-going existence to augmented effort with possible failure.

You are missing a lot when you have nothing for which to strive.

Self-satisfaction is a dangerous narcotic.

It means that you are easily pleased.

What are a few falls in comparison with the strength gained by trying?

And in trying, if you make a real effort, you strengthen yourself.

The Rhyming Optimist

The Radio

THE voices of the radio
Are like a miracle,
Its captured music serves to show
How all about us dwell;
The joy of song and lovely sound,
How harmonies exist
To ebb and flow and ring us 'round
Which long our dull ears missed.

The voices of the radio
Have proved to us anew
How all man's forces rise and grow
To grasp the good, the true;
How, ever, since the world began,
New gifts have been attained
And, through the slow-unfolding plan,
New realms of beauty gained.

Right Angles

By ALEXANDER CAIRNS

Why Did You Do It?

WHAT a major domo is motivation in the modern pedagogical realm!

Science has analyzed and systematized it and now it looms as large as discipline in the curricula of pedagogues.

The bonnie school teacher gave me the blue prints of the whole works and I admired her a wee bit more when she had done.

Challenge an ordinary ponderous man with the task of getting little tots to do things and candy is his only idea.

But the teacher has a whole Santa Claus bag full of tricks which work like magic all the way from kindergarten to the rahrah diploma.

The young hopeful who writes the copy well may do his name in hieroglyphics on the blackboard; or may water the geranium; or may hold the flag during the salute; or may collect the spelling papers; or may do 20 other things as big as a building to a child.

Here's a suggestion for the manager since all pedagogues are aces of managerial excellence.

If you would sandpaper your imperial order and make it a velvety request, you only have to touch the right button of motivation.

Then the thing, being done with joy, will be done more excellently.
